Reply to H. Ford For Each Scout One Lion A Penny Plus 900 Years From Mine to Farm

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THERE is no age limit on mental work," says Henry Ford, who has passed 65. He says men past 65 should not do too much running and jumping, but can do as much mental work as ever and better work.

MAN'S mysterious thinking power should not wear out, but the physical machine in which it works does wear out. Henry Ford would not keep any chauffeur that treated a machine as he treats the machine named Henry Ford.

ON Saturday last, Henry Ford left Binghamton, N. Y., in the morning and drove in a small Ford car steadily all day to his home in Dearborn beyond Detroit, more than 400 miles, reaching there the same night.

That is a crime against the Ford Company if Henry Ford did not own all the stock other stockholders would complain. Four hundred miles in one day in a small car means thousands of unconscious efforts of the brain, eyes and nerves, constantly on the alert. It means waste.

Henry Ford should remember that it is easy to get a new Ford when the old one wears out, but impossible to get a new Henry Ford.

EACH of three Boy Scouts that went to Africa with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnston shot a magnificent lion, one new 104 lions in all.

Wonderful excitement for three 15-year-old scouts. But the lion, with all its power, is a timid creature.

THE little bushman, one of the lowest of human beings, too feeble to hunt big game on his own account, tracks the lion while the latter is hunting. The lion kills a zebra or other animal; then the little bushman sees away the king of beasts, then pegs himself on the lion's "kill." The bushman, lowest of humans, can think a little. That beats the lion.

ROMAN coins dug up after 2,000 years are worth in silver and gold only what they were when buried.

This shows the importance of keeping your money earning interest. A silver penny like the one mentioned in the Bible, put out at interest, compounding for only 900 years, would amount to $1,270,000,000,000. That's more money than there is in the world.

BRITAIN'S coal mining problem resembles ours, but is more acute. The coal industry is more important to Britain than to us.

Twenty-one thousand British miners, as a start, will be taught farming, then Britain will send them to Canada.

For two years the men get wages that will support them and let them save $500. Canada will be expected to do the same to establish the men on free or low-priced land. That seems intelligent.

JOSE DE LEON TORAL murdered Obregon, according to Mexican police, to free the Mexican Catholic Church from persecution. Yesterday the police of Mexico City arrested 17 nuns, including Sister Conception Acevedo de la Lata.

POLICE allege that Toral conceived the idea of assassinating Obregon in the convent at which Sister Conception is Mother Superior.

It is, however, well known in Mexico and elsewhere that the assassination of Obregon is the worst thing that could have happened, so far as the interests of the Mexican Catholic Church are concerned.

The religious war in Mexico is evidently far from an end.

IT was suggested here yesterday that some little lambs were running because they feared 7 or 8 per cent money. They got both yesterday. Money started at 6 went to 6½, 7, 7½ and then 8.

The unexpected happened, as it usually does in Wall Street. Stocks went up.

A decent respect for the laws on usury must put some limit on interest charges, and it is hard to see how the big fellows that control the price of money will manage to curb the little fish.

RELATIVES of Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian millionaire, supposed to have jumped to death from his private airplane, ask French and Belgian authorities to seek out "those guilty of poisoning him," alleging that he was murdered.

It is a case to puzzle Sherlock Holmes. Loewenstein was thrown or jumped from the airplane into the channel. There were fewer than half a dozen in the plane with him. Which one could have done it, and how, without the others knowing it?

STUDENTS of Bangalore, India, much annoyed by an unworthy one allotted to an image of their particular god, started riots. A regiment of lancers from Mysore quieted them. Fifty-five went to the hospital.

How much more sensible to have allowed their god to pick out his own site, take it and maintain it despite the authorities! If no conflict on such, there couldn't be much of a god.

COUNTY AWAITS MOVE TO NAME NEW RECORDER

Petition Necessary To Declare Office of Chas. E. Smith Vacant

GONE THREE MONTHS

Suit Planned Against Bonding Company for Alleged Shortage, Prosecutor Says

For more than three months Marion county has been without the services of a county recorder. In that time nothing, apparently, has been done to replace Charles E. Smith, who mysteriously disappeared from the city, leaving, according to the special report of the state examiners, T. W. Jones and A. G. Atwill, a shortage in his accounts of $2,901.86.

Since the disappearance of the recorder on April 20, the office has been in charge of E. M. Bell, Smith's deputy. The absence of Smith has meant that the work formerly done by three persons now has to be done by two. It is only within the last week that a typist has been added to the office staff, again increasing the force to three.

The increase in work due to the absence of the recorder has forced the two original members of the force to spend many long hours at work after the regular closing time of the office in order to keep records up to date.

No Payment Made

So far Smith's shortage has not been made good by his bonding company, the Southern Surety Co., of Des Moines, Ia. Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann said today that he had notified the bonding company of the conditions here but has received no reply. The prosecutor expects to file suit in common pleas court for collection of the $2,000 bond within a short time unless some more favorable to the county is made by the firm.

But in the meantime the county remains without the services of an official, as the office has never been vacated. Although there is nothing in the laws of the state that requires a county recorder to give his full time to the office, it has been customary here for the official to personally supervise the work of his department.

Prosecutor Wiedemann said today that he was prepared to draw the necessary petition as the first step in

BUILDING SHOWS INCREASE IN JULY

52 Permits for Projects Estimated at $56,561 Issued by City Clerk

An increase in both the number of permits and the estimated cost of the building provided for by the permits was shown during July over the corresponding month last year as well as that of the preceding months this year, according to a report for the month completed by City Clerk S. H. Keller today.

Fifty-two permits for building construction estimated at $56,561 were issued during the month compared to 35 permits for buildings estimated at $14,715 issued during July last year and 38 permits for buildings estimated at $30,215 for June of this year.

Four permits for commercial projects totaling $20,900 were included in the July list. These included remodeling of the Erie restaurant into office rooms at an estimated cost of $12,000 and building of a store room at the intersection of Davids and Wood sts. at a cost of $6,500.

Fourteen dwellings costing $31,100 and 20 garages costing $2970 were also included in the July permits. There was also one permit for enlarging of the press room at the Jay Maish Advertising Co., on South Main st., at a cost of $1,700 and two permits for porches to cost $65.

NO IDENTIFICATION

All Clues to Murdered Man Fail to Stand Up

Cincinnati, Aug. 1—Identification of the murdered man found in a wheat field near Rushville, Ind., Monday was as remote today, according to police here, as at any time since the discovery of the body.

Several clues taken from the man's clothing have failed to produce results, as have several "tips." Police at Rushville have announced their intention of having the body interred within 48 hours if identification is not made, as it is impossible to embalm it.

RACE HORSE CARETAKER KILLED IN TRUCK CRASH

Mansfield, Aug. 1 — The body of Emmett Harris, 36, race horse caretaker, was enroute to his home in Quincy, Ill., today following his death near here yesterday when the truck in which he was riding crashed into a tree. Harris was employed by the C. A. Bostwick stables of New Orleans. Companions of Harris escaped injury.

Howard Hagerdorf, Cincinnati negro, was being held here pending investigation of the crash, which police say was caused when he fell asleep at the wheel. The negro's license was revoked.

Calvin Coolidge to End His Fifth Year As President; Has Seven Months More

Men Close to Him Say Executive Happy as Term Nears Close

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 1—Tomorrow, Calvin Coolidge will bring to a close his fifth year in the White House. He will spend the day quietly, fishing the Brule river nearby Cedar Island lodge, happy in the thought he has but seven months more to spend at the exacting job of chief executive of the nation.

At least so his confidants say as to the latter. Those members of the executive staff attached to the Summer White House detail who are closest to him say that the final acceptance of his decision not to run again and the subsequent nomination of Herbert Hoover have lifted years from him in action and appearance.

It is certain that the month and a half on the Brule river thus far has worked wonders physically on the president. When he arrived on the fifteenth of June he seemed underweight. His complexion was pasty and he seemed tired almost to the point of exhaustion. Six weeks of constant fishing and outdoor life on the Pierce estate, however, obviously have put him back on his feet, so to speak. He again tips the scales at his usual 158-160 weight; the sun and wind have tanned his face, and the lines of fatigue have almost wholly disappeared.

A year ago tomorrow, Mr. Coolidge electrified a dozen newspapermen, and very shortly thereafter the whole country, by handing out

TWO KILLED DURING FIGHT WITH SHERIFF

Portage County Official Shoots Pair After Being Knocked Down

Ravenna, Aug. 1—Two men were killed and a third was probably fatally wounded in a gun battle with the sheriff of Portage county today when he sought to arrest the trio as suspected chicken thieves.

Answering a call that chicken thieves were operating near here, Sheriff J. P. Ferry and a deputy encountered the three men, who resisted arrest. One of the group knocked the sheriff down and while lying on the ground the latter opened fire.

The dead are Harry Gipe, 28, and Ralph Brown, 27. Ira Clogston, 24, was wounded. All are of South Newberry.

Try to "Rush" Him

According to the sheriff, he shot Brown and Gipe when they tried to "rush" him. The deputy went to his aid and Clogston then reached the automobile. The deputy is believed to have shot him.

Sheriff Ferry then went to the men's homes and conducted a vigorous search. The sheriff said he found a letter from Clogston's sister, postmarked Chambersburg, Pa., warning him not to come home since there was a warrant for his arrest in connection with an attempt to bomb a train; Ferry also reported that a number of chickens were found near the men's homes. He said that in his opinion these were stolen from several Portage county farmers.

Sheriff Ferry had been informed of

STATE WHEAT YIELD LOW; QUALITY FAIR

Weather Bureau Reports Excellent Progress with Cultivation and Harvesting

Columbus, Aug. 1—Wheat yield in Ohio this year is exceedingly poor and the quality only fair, according to a report issued here today by the U. S. weather bureau of the department of agriculture.

Other items of the report included: Good to excellent progress was made with cultivation, haying and harvesting. Corn made wonderful growth and is now in a very good condition, most of it being in tassel and some of the early planted corn in souring the roasting ear stage. Oats have ripened rapidly and continued to lodge badly in many sections. Some oats have been cut and the crop is mostly good.

Potatoes have grown rapidly and indicate a good crop. The tomato crop is about average, while tobacco is only fair, owing to its late start. Meadows, truck crops, fruits and pastures have made satisfactory progress.

Talking Movies to Bring Broadway Shows to Small Towns; End of Road Seen

Theatrical Producers Obtain Control of Sound Film and Plan To Present Plays with Their Original Casts; Musical Comedies Will Be Features

New York, Aug. 1—Broadway shows for the smaller cities and towns of the country, with the original casts is the latest plan of theatrical producers. In the flesh and blood? Hardly. It's to be by the talking motion picture and virtually means the end of the theatrical touring companies.

Plans practically completed by A. H. Woods, the Shuberts, William A. Brady and Arthur Hammerstein will confine the activities of the stars of the theatrical world to cities like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit but a reproduction of their performances by the "talkies" will be available to cities, large and small, everywhere.

The producers mentioned have obtained control of the Vocafilm Corporation of America with offices and studios in New York, and are expected to begin making mechanical reproductions of their current theater successes in about six weeks, using the original cast.

The early Woods production of this season, "Jealousy," with Fay Bainter and Glenn Hunter as its stars, is expected to be one of the first plays presented. Others to follow in rapid order include "Fast Life," "A Man with Red Hair," an English play, and a production in which Florence Reed will star. Several Shubert musical shows will follow in an effort to build up an extensive program for the smaller cities so that theatrical owners will be

BLAZE CLAIMS ONE LIFE; 12 ARE SAVED

Coney Island Threatened by Second Fire Near New York

New York, Aug. 1—One man was killed in a fire believed to have been of incendiary origin in Williamsburg early today after a policeman and a civilian had rescued 12 persons. The victim was John Donbrowsky of 51 Grand st. His wife was saved.

Donbrowsky was at the window waiting to be rescued by way of a ladder when he suddenly darted back into the burning building, the stairway of which had been cut off. Twenty minutes later firemen discovered his body in a rear room where he had died of suffocation.

Coney Island, famous amusement center, was threatened with destruction in another fire that started in Luna Park. A stiff breeze whipped in off the ocean proved a boon to firemen. The entire $3,000,000 property might have been wiped out had it not been for this wind, fire officials said. As it was, the firemen threw streams of water on the tindery, frame buildings, and kept the loss under $50,000.

Martins Ferry, Aug. 1—Martins Ferry "blue law" fracas today reached threatening proportions as six more business men had been held to the grand jury for operating businesses on Sunday, bringing the total of persons facing grand jury action to more than a score.

The fight stared two weeks ago with the arrest by police of motion picture operators, who attempted to open their theaters on Sunday. Again last Sunday more movie houses employes were arrested and held to jail for a time because of the absence of the mayor, only to gain their freedom by habeas corpus from common pleas judges.

BOARD DECIDES ON CHAUTAUQUA FOR NEXT YEAR

Arrangements Made at Meeting Following Close of 1928 Program

OFFICERS CHOSEN

Karl Schell Elected President; Ticket Pledges Received for 1929 Course

Marion county will have a chautauqua next year. This decision was reached by the new board of directors of the Marion County Chautauqua association at a meeting following the concluding program last night at the pavilion, Garfield park.

Announcement of a 1928 chautauqua here was received with unusual interest, as unfavorable progress of the sale of subscriptions to season tickets for next year, yesterday afternoon, caused officials to express doubt as to the possibility of giving an entertainment course in Marion another year.

With last night's sale, however, more than 600 season tickets were pledged, assuring adequate financial support. About the same number of tickets had been pledged for the program this year.

Members of the chautauqua board, elected upon recommendation of the nominating committee, chose the following officers: Karl Schell, president, the Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, vice president and manager, Mrs. John Oborn, secretary, and Stewart G. Glaesner, treasurer.

The new members this year are Mrs. C. F. Davison, Mr. Shell, Raymond F. Fletcher, Homer Waddell, Earl Thomas and H. B. Walker. Old members, reelected, are Mrs. Oborn, Mrs. Lewis Uhl, the Rev. Mr. Weckmueller, Mr. Glaesner, Lawrence Kerns and C. Z. Zachman.

Clark Gives Talk

Attorney John H. Clark, a former member of the board, gave a short talk.

According to statistics given by Mr. Glaesner, the $1,100 chautauqua program brought here this year fell short about $200 of being a financial success.

PLAN PROGRAM OF REMODELING FOR Y. M. C. A.

Removal of Bowling Alleys Included in Schedule of Extensive Changes

NEW BOYS' SECRETARY

C. Carl May Arrives To Take Charge of Department, Which Will Be Enlarged

C. Carl May, 27, who for the last two years has been serving as assistant boys' work secretary at Canton, took over the boys' work secretaryship of the Marion Y. M. C. A. today.

Simultaneous with the arrival of Mr. May in Marion, it was announced that extensive plans for remodeling the lower floor of the local "Y" would start at once.

E. N. Hale, general secretary, stated that the bowling alleys will be removed at once to make room for the new boys' work department on the first floor.

Will Move Office

The present office of the "Y" will be moved back of the partition now dividing the floor into two divisions. This is being done to provide more space in the lobby.

New pool tables and other equipment will be added to make the boys' work department one of the most up-to-date as well as one of the largest in the state. Mr. Hale stated that an extensive program will be worked out for the younger members of the "Y" as soon as the remodeling is completed.

Second Floor Plans

Some remodeling work will be done on the second floor. Rooms will be converted into a dining hall, club rooms and dormitories. Practically the entire building will be redecorated.

The new boys' work secretary is a graduate of Defiance college and has taken graduate work at Yale. Before entering Y. M. C. A. work at New Haven, Conn., four years ago he taught one year in high school.

During his college career he took part in athletics and played in the band. He was married a week ago.

LOCAL PASTOR LOSES LIFE IN SANDUSKY BAY

Sinks to Death After Clinging Several Hours to Capsized Boat

COMPANIONS SAVED

Tragedy Climaxes Fishing Trip of Three Ministers of the Gospel

Rev. Frank P. George, pastor of the Herman Street Community church, is dead today and his two companions on a fishing trip are in a state of collapse following a tragedy in Sandusky Bay, where their boat capsized yesterday afternoon.

The Rev. Mr. George together with the Rev. E. J. Haldeman, of Toledo, and the Rev. George Reep, of Green Springs, an evangelist, left Whites Landing near Sandusky, yesterday afternoon for a fishing trip in the bay. Late in the afternoon their outboard motor boat capsized, throwing all three into the lake.

After clinging to the boat for several hours the Rev. Mr. George dropped to the bottom from exhaustion.

Cling to Boat During Night

Haldeman and Reep clung to the boat until they were picked up by a passing tug this morning.

The Rev. Mr. George's body has not been recovered and is being sought by life guards from Marblehead, near White's Landing, according to a report received from Fremont, today.

White's Landing, where the tragedy occurred, is about nine miles northeast of Fremont.

Rev. Mr. George, together with Mrs. George and their three sons, Raymond, Francis and Lloyd, left Marion for the lake resort yesterday. They were accompanied by the Rev. and Mrs. Reep, of Green Springs. They expected to spend several days at the resort.

The two survivors of the tragedy are in a state of collapse today, their description of the tragedy was obscured due to their exhausted condition.

Boats Search

Louis P. White, a state senator, and founder of the resort which bears his name, started a search for the three men last night when they failed to return to the landing. The survivors state today that his motor boat passed within a short distance of them several times during the night. Due to the darkness, however, White was unable to see the two men clinging to the overturned boat. The roar of the motorboat engine drowned out the sound of their voices.

When the overturned boat began to show signs of sinking as a result of the weight of the motor, Haldeman is reported to have dived under the boat and released the engine.

Information received today by members of the Herman Street church congregation was vague. A long distance telephone call received here this noon first advised the Rev. Mr. George's parishioners of the tragedy.

Famous Spanish Flier Begins Round-the-World Flight

RAMON FRANCO HOPS OFF FOR THE AZORES

Start of Flight Follows Months of Intensive Preparation

HYDROPLANE IS USED

Halifax Next Stop, with New York To Follow on Route

Cadiz, Spain, Aug. 1—Bound for the Azores in the first leg of a projected round-the-world flight, Commander Ramon Franco, famous Spanish aviator, hopped off from here at 7:30 a. m. today (3:30 a. m. eastern daylight time), in a huge Dornier-Superwal hydroplane, the Numancia.

Franco was accompanied by Captains Ruiz De Alda and Gallarza of the Spanish royal flying force, and a civilian mechanic, Pablo Rada.

The start of the flight today followed months of intensive preparation. The hydroplane was assembled here by German mechanics and then put through severe tests. It is fitted with four Napier engines of 500 horsepower each and is said to be capable of maintaining an average speed of 125 miles an hour under ordinary conditions.

The Numancia has a wing-spread of 95 feet and is of all-metal construction. It weighs 13,000 pounds when empty and is capable of carrying a load of 8,000 pounds. Its fuel capacity exceeds 2,000 gallons, giving it a cruising radius of about 2,500 miles.

According to tentative plans announced before the start of the flight, France intends to fly to Halifax after reaching The Azores. From Halifax, Franco will fly down the Atlantic coast to Havana, stopping at New York on the way down.

From Havana, he will fly to Mexico City, then up the Pacific coast to Alaska, across the Bering sea, down the coast to Siberia and Manchuria to Japan, thence to the Philippines, Burma, India and Persia in turn and across Europe back to Spain. Suitable stops will be made enroute.

Two years ago, Franco successfully spanned the South Atlantic from Europe to South America for the first time. Ruiz De Alda and Rada accompanied him on that flight also. Gallarza won fame as an aviator in 1926 when he flew from Spain to Manila.

SMITH WILL RETURN TO NEW YORK TODAY

Plans Several Conferences with Chairman Raskob in New York

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 1—Gov. Al Smith today was to forsake swimming in Long Island waters to get back in the swim of the presidential campaign.

Having enjoyed a five-day rest at Canoe Place inn, seven miles from here, the governor planned to motor to New York this afternoon where he is expected to have several conferences with John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National committee, before returning to Albany on Sunday. One of these conferences with Raskob may take place tomorrow aboard the yacht of William H. Todd, one of the governor's millionaire friends.

As soon as he returns to the capitol, the governor will dispose of state business that has piled up during his brief absence and then settle down to whip into final shape the address he will deliver on Aug. 22, when he is to be formally notified of the presidential nomination. He hopes to complete work on his acceptance speech by the middle of the month so he will have an opportunity to get another brief vacation, possibly in the Adirondacks before the notification.

While the governor never has enjoyed better health than at present, members of his family and his close friends have advised him to get all the rest he can between now and the first part of September when he will launch his active campaign.

Marion Feels Effect of Cattle Shortage as Prices of Beef Go To High Level

Meat Selling at Highest Figure Since War, Inquiry Shows: Predict Rise Will Continue with Prospects of Peak Not Being Reached Before December

An advance in beef prices as the result of a cattle shortage which now exists over the country, was reported by retail meat dealers here today. While the advance is not as great as in many of the larger cities, where prices are said to have reached war time levels, it is considerably higher than at any time since the war.

Round steak and roasts were selling here today at from 40 to 45 cents with loin steak at 45 to 50 cents and porterhouse steaks at from 50 to 60 cents with prospects of a further advance within the next two weeks. Just what prices are likely to prevail when the top is reached, local dealers refused to predict.

Result of War Time Order

The situation, as outlined by dealers here, is the direct result of efforts made by the government during the World war to prevent soaring prices. With this country's entry into the war, cattle raisers were urged by the government to increase their production in order to prevent a shortage. This they did and when peace was declared, there was a great surplus of beef cattle and prices fell, many of the large cattle raisers being forced into bankruptcy.

With prices at a low ebb during the years immediately following the war, few cattle were raised, resulting in the present shortage which has sent prices soaring.

Rigid cattle inspection which now exists in practically every state of the union, has also contributed to the steady advance in beef prices, cattle men say. The test for tuberculosis now being demanded in nearly all states has resulted in a large number of cattle being declared as unfit for the market.

Predictions for Future

That the peak in beef prices would not be reached before December, was the opinion expressed by some dealers here today, who also say they do not believe the prices will be reduced to their former low level before the end of two years, since it will require that long a period of time for cattle production to reach normaly.

Pork prices are also high at the present time. Pork chops were being quoted here today at 35 cents a pound and roasts at 20 and 25 cents. Bacon and ham has shown little advance.

PRUE GRATTAN GIVES KENTON HORSE FAST CHASE ON STRETCH

Broken Wheel Causes Free-for-All Winner To Drop Heat

ROSCOE TAKES FIRST

Azon Cops 2:15 Trot as Favorite Breaks at Start of Heat

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

AFTER smashing a wheel in the first heat, Joe Lewis of the Jump and Burton stables at Kenton came back in the next two to take the free-for-all pace which featured Tuesday's meeting of the Ohio Short Ship Circuit at the fairgrounds.

The Kenton gelding did not have a clear time of it, however, being hard pushed in every heat by Prue Grattan with Miller up. The last two heats were won in 2:07½, the fastest time of the day.

In the first heat when the Jump Bros. horse was forced out, Prue Grattan won in 2:08¾. She then took second in the last two heats. Atteo with Morrison up finished second, Jackie O'Connor third.

Pushed Hardest In Last

It was in the final heat that Joe Lewis was given his greatest opposition by the little pacer pulled through with a victory by a half length after a terrific stretch drive. Around the last turn Jackie O'Connor gave him a good race but could not keep up the terrific speed.

Peter Cowl, a favorite in the first over the 2:15 trot, failed to place among the first four in the race won by Azon with Cares up. Peter Cowl in the first two heats broke before reaching the first turn. In the final he managed to step up to third place where he finished.

Roscoe with Smart up took the pacing event in straight heats with 2:14 being chalked up as the best time. Directmar finished second with Dean Wilson taking third money.

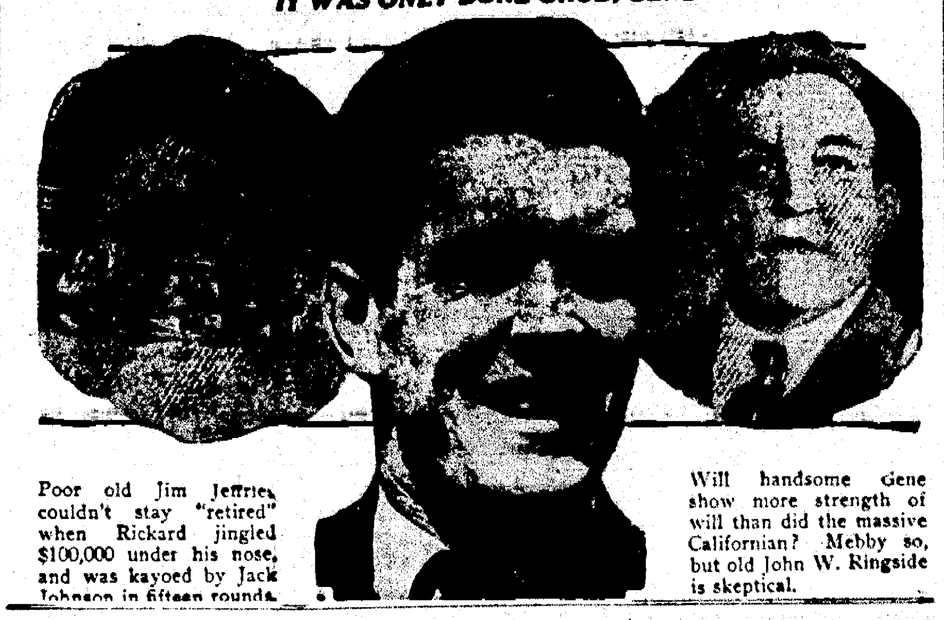
Dempsey-Tunney Fight Possibility

IT WAS ONLY DONE ONCE, GENE



Poor old Jim Jeffries couldn't stay "retired" when Rickard jingled $100,000 under his nose, and was kayoed by Jack Johnson in fifteen rounds.

Will handsome Gene show more strength of will than did the massive Californian? Mebby so, but old John W. Ringside is skeptical.

JACK RETURNS FROM RETIREMENT TO SIGN CONTRACT WITH TEX

Former Champion Will Meet Winner of Rickard's Elimination Tourney

GENE GIVEN 12 MONTHS

In Which To Change Mind by Walsh; Is Hard-Headed Man

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—Gene Tunney was a private citizen today, no longer the man who is, but now the man who was, a state of affairs brought about by the act of his own hand—his public disavowal yesterday of the heavyweight championship. An hour before he made the announcement, that other famous "widower" of the profession, Jack Dempsey, promptly retired from retirement, as he so often averred he wouldn't and if there is no connection to be seen between these circumstances, then somebody ought to be entitled to the packet of pencils, the tin cup and the dark glasses right away and a trifle sooner.

The writer is not presuming to declare that one man's retirement and the other's return mean beyond doubt that Dempsey and Tunney ultimately will meet in the championship ring for the third time. But there is no evidence on hand to indicate that it won't happen. Dempsey shouted from the house tops that nothing would induce him to come back. He is back. It, therefore, might seem reasonable to suppose that Tunney's representations of yesterday may be almost equally impermanent in their effect.

Tunney Not Wanted

The fact of the matter is that Dempsey never would have signed with Tex Rickard to meet the winner of the latter's heavyweight tournament next summer if he believed this action would

BILL GIBSON WILL MAKE COMEBACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—The retirement of Billy Gibson from boxing was one of the shortest absences on record. On Monday afternoon Gib announced he was quitting with Tunney but now he asks not to be held to that promise if he gets a grip on another good heavyweight prospect.

"I only said I was quitting," William explained, "because my stable has been pulled out from under me."

Gibson is the only manager who ever has two champions retire undefeated on him. The other was Benny Leonard, who turned in his lightweight title four years ago.

CARDS BOOST LEAD IN NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE TO FIVE GAMES

Yankees Finally Stop Cleveland; Athletics Win Eighth Straight

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 1—A month ago the St. Louis Cardinals faced a stiff fight in staving off the rush of four rival clubs, while the New York Yankees enjoyed an apparently insurmountable lead in the junior circuit. Today the Cards are five games ahead of the second place Reds, only a half a game less than the margin which the Yanks hold over the Athletics. So if there is to be a runaway pennant race this year, it probably will be in the National league and not in the American.

The Yankees finally stopped Cleveland yesterday 12 to 9, but there was little balm in the victory for Manager Huggins. Hoyt was knocked out of the box and had to be rescued by Pennock, the only pitcher on the team who can consistently go nine innings at present.

To add to the woes of Huggins, the Athletics chalked up their eight straight win by outslugging the Browns 8 to 4. Six home runs were made including two by young Haas. The Browns have lost their last nine games with the Mackmen.

The Cardinals capped a refreshing visit to Philadelphia, oasis of the National league by socking three Quaker twirlers for 20 hits and winning 18 to 5. Douthit collected five hits.

Dazzy Vance beat Cincinnati, 3 to 2, enabling the Dodgers to square the series and regain fifth place from the Pirates, who took an 11 to 5 shellacking at the hands of the Braves. Jake Flowers, who has clinched the second base berth on the Brooklyn team by his batting made three hits and drove in two runs.

A five-run rally in the ninth, during which six Giants hit safely after two were out, threw 30,000 New York fans into hysterics as the McGrawian maulers nosed out the Cubs, 8 to 7. But Charley Root stopped the Giants in the nightcap, 10 to 4.

Charley Ruffing, Red Sox hurler, tried to beat Detroit single-handed by clouting a homer and a double, but his mates collected only two other hits off Vic Sorrell and lost 7 to 2. Gehringer and Rice each had a perfect day at bat.

Washington's four-run rally in the eighth fell short and the Nats lost their third straight game to the White Sox, 7 to 5.

DEMPSEY BACK IN RING FOR TITLE

GENE TUNNEY hands over his heavyweight title to any man able to keep it. Jack Dempsey, former holder of the title who was retired by Gene at Philadelphia and convinced of the fact in Chicago, has signed with Tex Rickard to fight the winner of an elimination tournament next year for the belt.

Those are the latest developments on the heavyweight horizon today that have turned the boxing world more or less upside down.

In some quarters a third meeting between Gene and Jack is being forecast, that is, if Dempsey can come back. In case this occurs it looks as though John D. Public is in for another good shakedown for a few additional shekels. There is n doubt but what a Dempsey-Tunney go would fill the largest stadium to its capacity.

These events following in quick succession leaves some doubt as to the sincerity of the whole business. Was the whole thing engineered to provide another great "battle of the century" or just a sequence of affairs in which money and large gates had no consideration?

An Ohioan will probably get a crack at Dempsey. He is Johnny Risko of Cleveland who is being considered as one of the outstanding heavyweight boys today. Another bout with Jack Sharkey also seems in prospect.

GRATTAN BARS DISAPPOINTING TO EYE

GRATTAN BARS may or may not set a new state record in the exhibition mile which will be paced over the fairgrounds track Thursday afternoon.

The famous Canadian horse whose record is 1:50½ will be driven by Vic Fleming. Today he is to be exhibited to fans in the stands.

Those seeing this great pacer will be greatly disappointed. He appears to be just an ordinary horse to the average eye. One must see him in action to really appreciate the greatness that has made him the sensation of race fans this year.

FEW CHANGES APPEAR IN RACING

CHANGES in harness racing have been made with an extraordinary degree of slowness but owners of stables are quick to seize upon modern methods of transportation to give their steeds the greatest comfort and safe delivery to the next track.

Most of the long trips are taken in express cars with the racers being given better care than a man gives to his own body. Most of the short trips, however, are made in huge motor trucks. Practically every horse owner now has a car designed to transport the racers here and there.

YANKS STOP CLEVELAND

THE success the New York Yankees will have at St. Louis in the series opening today will influence the outcome of the American league pennant race.

The Yanks finally stomped their meteoric dash down with the rest of the teams yesterday by defeating Cleveland. The Athletics kept within 5½ games by defeating the Browns.

Some interest is being manifested in the fight the Cardinals are putting up for first place in the National loop. The St. Louis team is now leading the Reds by five games.

JACK DEMPSEY WILL RETURN FOR TITLE

Former Champ Will Meet Winner of Rickard's Elimination Tourney

lead to another meeting with Tunney. He wants no more of that young man. But suppose Dempsey regains the title, as many will expect him to do. And suppose Tunney decides that he wants to come back, as he very well might after he saw that the title had fallen into Dempsey's hands again. Our John could hardly run out on that one, even if he wanted to from a personal standpoint. It would make him look too bad, for one thing, and it would lose him too much money, for another.

Imagine the awful laceration the turnstiles would take if and when they hold a heavyweight championship fight between the man who regained the title, a feat never before achieved, and the man who never lost it.

Hasn't Chance To Win

The majority of experts wouldn't give Dempsey a white man's chance of winning but that would make no difference to John Bannanas and his brother-in-law. They want to see in there with Tunney a man who has a chance to level him with one punch, and, besides, there are a lot of souls on this earth who have never got over the idea that Dempsey really is the champion by virtue of the famous long count in the seventh round at Chicago.

Opinion today was pretty equally divided as to whether Tunney's retirement is permanent or really temporary. Those close to the man, however seem cemented in their notion that, having relinquished the possession he prized most, Tunney is through for all time. This may be, for he is a singular individual if ever there was one and he has the strength of character to stick with a thing even when he believes it to be against his impulses and desires. If I am drawing a picture of a hard-headed man sitting down to give himself a terrible beating on any issue that might arise, I am desolated but not discouraged. In fact, I regard that picture as an excellent likeness.

12 Months Will Tell Story

The ensuing twelve months will tell the story of Tunney's retirement. As read, it must be accepted at face value but not without reservations. One of these would take in the possibility of a standing heavyweight being uncovered in the next year—Dempsey, for example, or the man who arises to a point of great disorder by knocking Dempsey out.

For Tunney, even in retirement, is the type of man who will want to be recognized as the greatest there is. If another arises whose name and ability disputes the point, then every tendency of the retired champion will be tugging at him to go out and reaffirm the supremacy he now enjoys.

But the development in question must arise within the period of time in which Tunney believes his speed will stay with him even though he be inactive. For, as I have said before, Tunney may come back to score an unexpected victory; never to accept an expected defeat. Too much does he enjoy the distinction of being the only heavyweight champion, who retired undefeated, to spoil the illusion.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Aug. 1—July corn went out at $1.15½, only a shade under the high price on the crop made two months ago. The most sensational incident of the day's trading came just as the final gong sounded when Fred A. Ingalls, well-known broker, toppled over in the corn pit and had to be carried out. It was believed he was overcome by the heat and excitement attendant on filling orders at the close.

He recovered shortly and said he felt no ill effects of the fainting spell.

Aside from the strength in July corn, which closed 4 cents higher than on Monday, all the futures in all the grains looked sick and weak and finished at lower prices. July oats went all to pieces at the end, dropping 6 cents.

July wheat went out at $1.17⅝ f 1.17⅝. This price per bushel of 60 pounds, compared with the price of July corn per bushel of 56 pounds, would mean that corn was worth more than wheat per pound, the former being 2.76 cents a pound, wheat only 2.09 cents.

Other Futures Don't Agree

Prices of the other corn futures gave the sneer to any such relative value.

At the close wheat was ⅛c to 1⅛c lower, corn was 4c higher to 1½c lower, oats were ¼c to 6c lower, rye was ⅝c to 2c lower.

Will Corn Deal Pay?

The group that ran the July deal now has a world of corn to merchandise, probably about 9,000,000 bushels. They seem to be in a position which will make necessary supporting both the September future and the cash market. A sharp drop in cash prices today would not surprise a good many observers.

Any strength in the futures at the opening and during the early trading this morning is likely to meet with attempts at liquidation. About 10 o'clock the private crop reports will probably be issued.

In these estimate the corn crop at around 3,000,000,000 bushels and the total wheat crop at close to what it was last year—two things which are extremely likely—there may be a rush of longs to get out of the market.

STREET SURFACING WORK IS RESUMED

City Employes Spread Amiesite Covering on W. Center

Employes of the city service department under the direction of Superintendent of Streets William Honaker, started yesterday afternoon placing strips of amiesite on West Center st., from where the work stopped several weeks ago, to Prospect st. The strips are of the same width as on Main st., and are placed on both sides of the street car tracks.

The intersection of Prospect and Center sts., will also be covered with the road material, the same as Center and Main sts., it was announced by the superintendent of streets. He also announced that with the completion of the West Center st., paving the strips will be extended west to connect up with the new paving.

Placing of the amiesite strips has done much to eliminate the rough sections of Main and Center sts., and while only of a temporary nature, has been a great improvement to automobile travel over the downtown streets.

Resolutions for permanent rebuilding of both Main st., and Center st., will be passed at the next meeting of city council on Aug. 13 it is expected.

induced to install the vocafilm process which is said to cost only about $3,500 and is much cheaper than other similar processes.

Plays may be recorded in the theater in which they are being produced, the time required being about two weeks.

The Actors' Equity association will be a factor in the plans however. The association recently warned its members to act cautiously in regard to talking film contracts. The association's attitude was expressed by Frank Gilmore executive secretary of the association, who said:—

"The association does not question that the managers will ask equity for its ruling on this matter before embarking on any such project. But in the meantime equity members are forbidden to make any such recording of their current productions without first consulting equity headquarters."

in Rapid City, S. D., a little typewritten slip saying merely: "I do not choose to run in nineteen twenty-eight." From that date on, right up to the Republican convention at Kansas City last June, the thought persisted he was not sincere—that he could be "drafted."

Several subsequent statements also were turned back as being without finality. The president came to the Wisconsin northwoods for his annual vacation on the eve of the Kansas City convention with the "draft" talk still circulating. Noticeably, he was out of sorts and inclined to be snappish with all those about him.

The nomination of Hoover marked the turning point, both in his attitude and his physical condition, those about him say.

In seven months, Mr. Coolidge will retire, regardless of the outcome of next November's election. Already there has been much speculation as to the future he will pursue. It has been rumored persistently that he will become chairman of the board of United States Steel corporation, the story being that J. P. Morgan took the job temporarily when Judge Elbert Gary died on the condition the president take it over when out of office.

Another report has it Mr. Coolidge will tour South America extensively, this story coming from the southern continent rather than from the United States.

Still a third has it he will become president of Amherst, his alma mater, although a new dean was installed only about a year ago.

COUNTY 3 MONTHS WITHOUT RECORDER

declaring the office vacant. He does not believe, however, that it is within the range of his duty to circulate the petition.

Plan of Procedure

To declare the office of recorder vacant it is necessary to obtain the signatures of six per cent of the qualified voters of the county to a petition containing specific charges against the official. The petition then must be filed in common pleas court. Ten days after the petition has been filed and notice of the action served at the last known address of the official, a hearing can be held by the court. If the court declares the office vacant the board of county commissioners can proceed with the appointment of a successor.

This method of declaring an office vacant was outlined to the board of county commissioners and the prosecuting attorney in an opinion given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner.

Shortly after Smith's disappearance, office seekers flocked to the county commissioners with applications for the position. These are on file at the commissioners' office and will probably constitute a list from which Smith's successor will be selected as soon as the office is vacated.

Smith's term of office does not expire until Jan. 1, 1930.

TO SPEND 4 MILLION

Washington, Aug. 1 — The Republicans will spend approximately $4,000,000 in the Hoover presidential campaign this year.

This figure was estimated today by Hubert Work, national chairman, after a conference with J. R. Nutt, Cleveland, national treasurer; Jeremiah Millbank, New York, eastern treasurer; Rep. Franklin Fort, New Jersey, national secretary, and H. L. Gutterson, executive secretary.

The Democrats have estimated their expenditures at between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000. These sums would result in the most expensive campaign in history.

NUN REMAINS CALM, DENIES ACCUSATION

Declares She Did Not Influence Toral To Kill General Obregon

Mexico City, Aug. 1—Despite the fact that Jose De Leon Toral, the young assassin of President-elect Alvaro Obregon reluctantly admitted at his preliminary court examination that he had been "indirectly influenced" in his determination to slay General Obregon by Conception Acevedo De Lata, mother superior of Espina Santo convent, the nun remained impassively calm today, reiterating her denial of guilt.

The preliminary court inquiry, which is being conducted by Judge Alonso Aznar Mendoza, has placed the following three persons in chief roles of Mexico's latest political melodrama:

Toral, 27-year-old religious fanatic, who calmly confessed the killing.

Mother Superior De La Lata, who denies any guilt whatsoever.

Manuel Trejo, labor leader and former government employe who is accused by the police of having furnished the pistol with which General Obregon was shot to death on July 17.

Calmly Face Future

Toral and the nun, who are under arrest, are stoical and face the future with utmost calmness. Trejo is missing and is believed to have escaped to the United States.

For many hours Toral underwent relentless questioning yesterday and faced a continuation of the grilling today. It is expected the formal accusation of murder will be lodged against him tomorrow. In the Mexican courts this is equivalent to a grand jury true bill in United States criminal procedure.

Toral has sat through the proceedings impassively, at times seemingly annoyed by the questions.

"It was all very simple; any one could understand it," he repeated several times.

Wife Is Destitute

It is the contention of the prosecution that Toral was influenced to commit the crime by a conversation he had with Mother Superior Conception several days before the shooting. Toral stontly maintains that no one but himself knew of his plan to kill the president-elect.

The nun is apparently a woman of superior intellectuality. She is about 45 years old, self possessed and stately in appearance. She told newspaper correspondents she faces the future with calmness.

Aside from the preliminary court inquiry Gen. Antonio Zertuche, chief of police for the federal district, is continuing his own investigation. Evidently he is not yet satisfied that Toral acted alone. He is determined to ascertain if a plot existed and if so to learn the identity of the ringleaders.

The most tragic figure at the hearing is Toral's young wife. She is destitute. Already she is the mother of two children and expects to become a mother again. For the time being she is living on the bounty of relatives.

HOOVER FISHES FOR TROUT NEAR MOUNT

Leads Party on Seeking Better Catches; Goes to Palo Alto Tonight

Shasta Springs, Cal., Aug 1—After leading his party across the Siskiyou range by moonlight, Herbert Hoover today went fishing for rainbow trout in the lee of snow-capped Mount Shasta.

The Republican nominee, after getting a catch of small trout in Beaver creek, a tributary of the Klamath river, quit his mountain camp near Hornbrook, Cal., and led a cavalcade of motor cars over the Siskiyou mountains. The ride was made by moonlight and on most of the journey the white topped Mount Shasta was in view.

The nominee with Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university, and a newspaperman caught 35 rainbow trout, most of them small. Hoover kept the fish hidden all afternoon as he didn't want to display a catch of such small fish. He served them however, for dinner to prove they really had been caught.

After reaching this mountain resort, shortly before 9 o'clock, Hoover made new headquarters at a hotel within sight of Mount Shasta. A mountain stream called "Shasta Springs" because of its source, ran directly beside the hotel. He arose with the dawn, for the fourth successive day, and left for the Pitt river, a tributary of the Sacramento, to try his skill once more on mountain trout.

Throughout this trip, in which Hoover has fished three streams twice without a catch, he made it clear he was getting his fill of recreation and rest and as he explained it, this was the purpose of the trip and he didn't mind coming back with an empty creel.

The nominee will leave here tonight on his return journey to Palo Alto where he will remain for the next 10 days prior to making his acceptance speech there Aug. 11. His party of 45 friends, newspapermen and photographers, will journey back by special train over the Southern Pacific lines, reaching San Francisco early tomorrow morning for a brief motor ride to Palo Alto.

A popular young couple can get so many and such splendid wedding presents that it is a burden to find room for them.

Weird Writing and Careless Public Are Source of Headaches at Local Postoffice

BUNGLES, errors, nonsense—or what have you? Everything from Dutch to unintelligible English, some written in a hand so childish that the characters aren't formed, and some by a hand so old that all sense of proportion is marred by the shaking fingers.

Sometimes between 300 and 400 letters of these types are received at the Marion postoffice in a day, and on other days the number lessens. It takes one man eight hours a day to straighten out the careless mistakes made by thoughtless people, when, if they would think just a moment longer, it wouldn't be necessary for him to hunt and dig out correct addresses, cities and states.

Sample "Puzzler"

Some years ago a letter came here from Germany with only the name, "Luul" Marion, Ohio, on the front of the envelope. This was a problem that confronted the local postoffice "trouble-shooter." All manner of names were thought of as a solution, but none worked. Finally, after studying the name of the sender the conclusion was reached that it must be La Uhl, and was found to be correct.

Comparisons of letters written in other words sometimes helps in solving one of these puzzles, but even then, it is necessary to send some of the letters to the dead-letter office in Washington, D. C.

Years ago a Marion woman handed the postman on her route two letters on the morning delivery. That afternoon the postman handed her a letter. The lady was astonished that any one could imitate her handwriting so cleverly, and upon tearing the letter open discovered that she had addressed the letter written to her brother to herself. Thoughtless.

Strange Street Names

Letters are received here addressed to West 5th st., East Long st., and to streets in other Marions in the United States. One letter received here was sent from this office to another person in the city, addressed to a street never thought of here.

The numerous errors in intermingling addresses and cities have resulted in an exchange of city directories between the postoffice of this city and Marion, Ind.

With every letter received here upon which the name and address are not correct, the city and rural directories are gone through to make sure that there is no similar name or address on record.

All of this takes a great deal of time and sometimes causes the sender to become angry with the postoffice officials. It isn't the fault of the people at the office for they are just as anxious to get the letters out of their hands as the people are to receive them.

Carelessness of the sender is the sole cause of trouble.

Why is it that people addressing letters are often thinking of a thousand and one things other than the name and address they are intending to write!

Packages As Well

Not only letters, but packages intended for other Marions are sent to the local postoffice. One was received here which had been through postoffice at more than half a dozen Marions, and was sent on from here to another city bearing that name.

An endless amount of time is spent delivering a package that would have gone direct and without delay to its destination had a little more thought been used when it was addressed.

And a little more thought would also relieve postoffice employes of needless headaches as well as help Uncle Sam handle his great postal service at less cost.

Some people get overheated rushing around looking for a cool spot.

Program For Registration of Voters Here Outlined by Election Board Official

Only New Voters or Those Changing Precincts Required To Register for Primary; General Registration Comes Prior to November Balloting

Contrary to a more or less widespread belief that all residents of the city of Marion who expect to vote at the August primaries must register before Aug. 14, only those who have moved from one precinct to another or new voters must register, according to A. W. Kette, secretary of the Marion county board of elections.

Registration days before the primaries will be Aug. 10 and 11. All voting places in the city will be open from 8 until 2 and from 4 until 9 o'clock on these days.

Any person who will be 21 years of age on or before Nov. 6, the date of the general election, is eligible to register and vote at the August primaries, according to Mr. Kette.

Registration for Election

A general registration will precede the November election, it was stated today by Mr. Kette. General registration is required every presidential year.

HOLD PICNIC

Missionary Society Stages Outing on Schroat Lawn

Waldo, Aug. 1—The Methodist Junior society held a picnic and wiener roast Friday afternoon on the lawn of the home of Miss Mardella Schroat with 12 members present. The following visitors were present: Miss Nida Higgins, of Lima; Mrs. Wesley Miller, of Marion; Mrs. Sarah Thompson, Mrs. Cinda Smith, Mrs. J. H. Tron and Mrs. Mae Schroats.

After the devotional and business session, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Schroats contributed recitations. Contests honors were won by Catherine Tron and Edna Baker. Another picnic will be held the last Friday afternoon in August.

HOLD SERVICES

Last Rites for Samuel Delong Conducted at Church

Green Camp, Aug. 1—Funeral services for Samuel Delong were held Monday afternoon at the Baptist church with Rev. S. B. Cunningham in charge. Interment was in the family plot in Green Camp cemetery.

Out of town relatives attending were Mrs. Caroline Delong, of Paulding county; Mr. and Mrs. William Dowler, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. George Underwood, Mrs. Clara Snyder and Miss Gladys Delong, all of Marion.

Rearrangement of voting precincts, resulting from Marion's new six-ward division, will become effective at the November election and general registration will list all voters in the new precincts.

Maps showing the new ward and precinct lines and the voting places have recently been received at headquarters of the board of elections. The map is said to be the most complete ever issued here. It not only distinguished between wards and precincts with boundary lines of different color and width, but also shows the location of the voting places in each precinct.

Three Precincts Added

The redistricting has added one precinct in the second ward and two in the sixth. The new arrangement will go into effect immediately after the August primaries and will be used first in the registration preceding the November election.

The days set by law for the registration for the general election are the Thursdays of Oct. 4 and 11 and Friday and Saturday, Oct. 19 and 20. The polls will be open from 8 until 2 and from 4 until 9 on each of these days.

Absent voters' ballots, now being received at the board of elections office, may be cast at any time prior to midnight, Aug. 11, by persons who will not be at home on primary day.

COLLINS-SHAW

The fourth annual reunion of the Collins and Shaw families was held Sunday at Garfield park. A picnic dinner at noon was followed by an afternoon of games and recitations. Edward Collins, of Mansfield, gave a history of the Collins family and Mrs. Lizzie Johns, of Upper Sandusky, and Mrs. William Collins, of Marion, read papers.

During the business session it was decided to hold the fifth annual reunion at Shelby early in September, 1929. Last year's officers, Willis Earl Stewart, president, and Mrs. Anna Berry, secretary-treasurer, were re-elected for the coming year.

PEARL

The third annual reunion of the descendants of William and Nancy Doty Pearl, was held at the Morrow county fairgrounds, Mt. Gilead, July 29. A large number attended. It was agreed that next year, on the last Sunday in July, 1929, the reunion would be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McClead, west of Mt. Vernon, O.

A short history of the family was given at the reunion.

Nancy Doty, one of the descendants of the family, according to the history given at the reunion, was born in Knox county, O., and was the daughter of Peter Doty. Peter Doty was a soldier in Washington's army and following the war had moved to Ohio.

At the time of Nancy's birth, Feb. 9, 1808, there were only a few rude cabins where the city of Mt. Vernon now stands.

On April 10, when 20 years of age, Nancy married William Pearl, whose ancestors lived in Maryland.

Soon after their marriage they moved to South Bloomfield township, Morrow county, where land was cleared and a cabin built. Nine boys and two girls were born to the couple. They are as follows: John, who died when one year old, Peter, Alexander, Jackson, William, James, Jane, Ellen, Isaac, Alvin and George.

William Pearl died July 8, 1863 at the age of 63 years. Nancy kept her family together on the farm and earned the living by carpet weaving. Nancy died Aug. 2, 1902 at the age of 94 years.

The oldest living son, Peter, is 96 years of age. The ages of the four living children, Peter, Jane, Ellen and George total 336 years.

Guests included Mrs. Mildred Kramp and children, Kay Dolores and Benjamin, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wood and family, of Kenton, Edward Flach, of Green Camp and Ralph Jully, of LaRue.

Dinner was served at noon on tables set in the yard. At the business session officers of the preceding year and the committees were reelected. The program was opened with singing of "America," followed by the Lord's Prayer. Recitations were given by Ellner and Jean Marian Flach. The entertainment closed with singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." No deaths, one birth and one marriage were reported in the family for the last year. The reunion next year will be the last Sunday in July, with the place not decided upon.

SIPES

The annual reunion in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. George Sipes was held Sunday at her home near Marengo. It was also the first birthday of little Marvin Beers, of near Kirkpatrick. A picnic dinner was served at noon, with a birthday cake with one large candle for Marvin and 71 small ones for Mrs. Sipes, centering the table. Those who attended included Mr. and Mrs. George Sipes, of Marengo, Mr. and Mrs. Vinel Sipes, of Barton, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Tanner and daughters Juanita and Louise, of Akron, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Ritzy Rosalie

FASHION now decrees that the well dressed woman must lead a pair of dogs which match her costume, and Rosalie, wishing to look quite smart on a special occasion, borrowed the two Pekinese whose hair happened to match her dress. It has become quite the thing to dye the hair of dogs to match some particular costume, and it is also more chic to lead a pair of dogs rather than a single one. Styles in dogs have been carried even farther than that—they must also be tailored according to the costume and occasion. Thus tailored suits require short haired dogs, while our friends, the Pekes are more appropriate with frilly costumes.

Daily Proverb—"Criticism is easy, art is difficult."

An Opportunity for Argument.

One of the popular indoor sports of the current era is the gathering of statistics concerning this or that, and then analyzing them in an effort to prove or disprove, a theory or at least make a theory workable. The latest such concerns the number of love affairs of an individual during a lifetime—and the fickleness of woman.

This investigation into human relationship was made by the Bureau of Social Hygiene of New York City. And the research work, pursued in the most matter-of-fact manner and scientific spirit, covers a period of four years. Now the report of the findings are revealed for the first time.

It seems that each individual has seven love affairs—or rather that the average among the returns gathered from 200 men and women included in this survey is seven each. In other words, it was proven by the survey among these 200 representative folks, that we are not monogamous, but polygamous. And the statistics also disclose that the girls are more fickle than the men—slightly more, that is.

Among the 200 there were 100 men and an equal number of women. The hundred men accounted for 681 love affairs, and the hundred women for 677. Three of the women admitted, however, they had never loved any man. Twenty-nine of the hundred men—and they were all husbands—permitted their affections to wander from the family circle, and forty-one of the wives among the 100 women found clandestine solace.

Ages of the men and women in this survey ranged from twenty-three to fifty-nine, the majority being between thirty and forty. These figures are interesting for the reason that they disclosed love affairs among the women in their twenties, and that another peak in the soaring of their affections was attained in their forties. And it also was disclosed that the women folks reach the peak of their love affairs earlier than the men. That is to say, the women concentrated in fewer years, while the men permitted their amours to extend over a longer period of years.

Just what the results of this survey will accomplish remains to be seen. Some will steadily deny the authenticity of the figures. Others will laugh and say "What of it?" So it goes.

But from the viewpoint of the man in the street the survey means little or nothing—except that those who participated in it had better not let their mates at home know of their carryings-on.

British Approval.

S. K. Ratcliffe, noted publicist and former American correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, long a resident in this country, now sets forth, in the current issue of the Contemporary Review, a defense of the United States against "the familiar charges of materialism, superficiality, crushing uniformity, and consequent spiritual inanition."

All Americans will feel grateful to Mr. Ratcliffe for this article, in which he states forcefully what most Americans believe to be true, concluding that the "nation, which for a century has been condemned as the people of the dollar, clings more lightly to money than any one in Europe. Americans hold that money is to be spent, not hoarded."

It is not a bad, but a good thing that wealth should be laid out for the establishment of a high minimum of the communal life. It can not be a bad thing that a whole people should aim at being well dressed, well fed and able to keep clean without a struggle. It is not materialism to bring light and power into the home, and so release civilized womankind from a deadly servitude of stoves and dustholes.

And if the idea of cities without slums is materialism, the best of England would never have been devoted to that very ideal.

Steel Production Sets a Mark.

Dispatches from Pittsburgh and other steel centers show that the first half of the current year has made a new high record in this industry, exceeding the first half of last year by more than three per cent. And this in spite of the fact that railroad purchases have been lighter than for many years.

The largest factor in the gain reported may be found in increased sales of agricultural implements, a decided indication that the farmer is coming into a more satisfactory economic condition right along.

Wheat is rolling into the Kansas City market at the rate of more than a thousand cars a day, with a prospect that the fields will continue to produce a good crop, aided by new machinery.

Banks are so well supplied with money in that region that they are experiencing no difficulty whatever in meeting the harvest demand. In these conditions there is nothing to show the traditional presidential year misgivings.

Business and the Government.

In a recent address President Coolidge remarked that the very essence of business is the expectation of profit on the part of those who conduct it. That is quite true. When business is in private hands it is expected to be run for the benefit of those who own it.

But when the government steps in, the purchasers, users and beneficiaries of what the government undertakes to supply, insist that the concern should be so conducted that they reap the sole benefit. Government conduct of business does not eliminate selfishness. It merely transfers it from the seller to the purchaser.

And under these conditions it ceases to be a real business, becomes lacking in enterprise and initiative, and does not have any motive to provide improved service.

If it is desirable that the people be protected in their freedom and independence, if it is desirable to avoid the blighting effects of monopoly, supported by the money of taxpayers, if it is desirable to prevent the existence of a privileged class, if it is desirable to shield public officials from the influence of propaganda and the acute pressure of an intrenched selfishness, if it is desirable to keep the government unencumbered and clean, with an eye single to the public service, the conduct of private business will be left to the individual where it belongs, and there will be no effort anywhere to unload it upon the government.

Few people will be found, aside from communists and those who profess to believe that every one is a ward of the government, who disagree with this program. The American people have progressed more rapidly during the more than a century and a quarter of their constitutional government than any other people have progressed in a similar era. And one of the reasons—perhaps the principal reason—is that this constitutional government has permitted, with reasonable limits, the fullest opportunity for the expression and development of the individual.

During this 125 years the American people have pushed civilization from the Atlantic across these broad lands to the Pacific, bound the nation together with fast communication lines, cleared the wilderness and drained the swamps until productive farms and flourishing cities have taken the place of waste and open spaces.

It must be remembered that all this has been done principally through individual enterprise, by pioneer spirit, the pride of individual achievement and the hope of individual reward for a work well performed.

It has only been of recent years that the spirit of paternalism has been abroad in the United States. There now are a great many well-meaning persons who believe that the government should finish what the people themselves have so well begun and so nearly completed. These persons seem to feel that as a nation we have lost our ability as individuals, and that the national government and the various state governments should step in and throw a multiplicity of bureaus and boards and commissions into action, not only to control the industries of the country, but for the regulation of conduct and individual welfare of the citizen from the cradle to the grave.

Some regulation to protect the people from those who would take an unfair advantage is of course proper and necessary. But any regulation which goes beyond this smacks of paternalism and mighty soon will change us from a nation of enterprising individuals into a collection of governmental wards without the spirit of enterprise to think and act for ourselves.

Government ownership of this country's great industries and utilities is the first step toward this paternalism. President Coolidge does well to issue a warning against taking this step.

Saving the Babies.

Infant mortality in the cities of the country last year was the lowest in the history of the American Child Health association. That means the lowest of which there is any available record. The rate for 1927 was given at 64.9 deaths for each 1,000 births, as compared with 73.7 in 1926 and 100 in 1925.

Some of the larger cities have a lower rate than other communities of much smaller population. So the old rule that the death rate increases as the population increases no longer holds. It is a fact that in some rural districts the infant mortality rate is higher than in congested urban centers. This is accounted for by the lack of organized public health service and maternity education in rural areas.

In view of the fact that the larger cities have a greater percentage of foreign population, which is reached and educated in maternity lore with much difficulty, their showing, compared with the smaller cities, is surprising. It would seem to indicate that their health services are better organized and much more effective.

As a group, the cities of more than 250,000 population had the lowest rate, 63.1. The rate of the cities not in the group was 68.1. This supports the claim of the health authorities that child life is purchasable along with general public health.

The important thing in the 1927 infant mortality figures is the improvement they show generally. They prove that the work being done in this field is not in vain.

$2,500,000 for Kraut.

Sauerkraut, contrary to the evidence of its name, is not believed to have originated in Germany. It probably is of Asiatic origin. Sauerkraut proved popular in Europe and German immigrants are credited with introducing it into the United States and spreading its popularity as a food.

Sauerkraut is shredded cabbage which has undergone a lactic fermentation in a brine made from its own juice by the addition of salt. And last year, it is estimated by the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, the value of the sauerkraut crop in the United States was $2,500,000. This means that 250,000 tons of cabbage went into kraut.

CHINA WAITS FOR RECOGNITION.

Guard Heart Against Ailments.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Every organ and cavity of the body has a delicate lining membrane. Nature, noted for finished workmanship, leaves no ragged edges or unfinished corners.

It is only natural that the heart, an organ so essential to life itself, should be particularly well finished. Its interior is carefully and perfectly lined with a membrane called the "endocardium."

No matter where such lining membranes are found, their very delicacy and tenderness render them liable to infection and disease. The wonder is they are not more commonly involved. It is a great tribute to the wisdom and genius of the Creator that they are not. The functions of the body are so wonderfully well directed that such delicate tissues as I have described are rarely attacked by serious disease.

But sometimes the endocardium become inflamed. When it does, the ailment is known as "endocarditis." The disease is almost always a symptom of some other trouble. It is rare indeed to have the endocardium originally attacked. Almost always the inflammation follows some other disease. For instance, scarlet fever, pneumonia, Bright's disease, diabetes, gout, rheumatism and St. Vitus' dance, may have endocarditis as a secondary disturbance.

In this disease, the doctor may find that the valves of the heart, which are covered with the same delicate membrane, are not closing properly. Sometimes there is serious thickening of the valves and marked interference with their action.

In telling you about a lot of diseases, I have said that "the surest means of cure is their prevention." Endocarditis should be an unknown disease. If we could guard against the ailments which cause it, there would be no endocardial attacks.

It will be a long time before we can protect ourselves against disturbing illnesses which may not be serious in themselves, but which lead to all sorts of secondary troubles. Until then we must accept these ailments and submit to their treatment.

The first thing to do in endocarditis is to give absolute rest to the victim. This may mean weeks and even months of quiet. Rest and sleep and plain diet—these are the simple rules of conduct in overcoming the disease.

The original ailment must be given first consideration. If it can be controlled, the endocarditis takes care of itself.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Saturday.

The home of Earl Bumford, nine miles west of Marion on the Kenton pike, was entered by burglars during the absence of the family. Clothing belonging to Audrey Anthony, an employe of Bumford, was stolen.

Mrs. James Pace, Windsor street, died after a brief illness while visiting at the home of her foster-mother, Mrs. Frank Swisher near Martel.

The New Wonderland "academy of motion pictures" opened to packed houses in the north Main street room formerly occupied by the Lyric theater. Illustrated songs were one of the features of the program.

The Star published the picture of a tree which had been split by lightning on the farm of John Culp, five miles southwest of LaRue.

Mrs. James E. Phillips entertained a party of friends at a morning bridge party at her home on south Main street.

M. F. Broderick, secretary of the Union county fair association, and F. D. Henderson were in the city advertising the fair to be held September 7-10 at Marysville.

Editorial Comment.

LINCOLN'S TEACHERS.

Commenting on Henry van Dyke's praise of the unknown teacher, the Los Angeles Times recently remarked: "Socrates begat Plato and Plato begat Aristotle. But who begat Socrates? Who was the teacher of Shakespeare? What unknown gave Lincoln those three months' schooling?"

Lincoln went to school for two brief terms under Zachariah Riney and Caleb Hazel in the Knob Creek district of LaRue county, but no one ever heard of either of these men outside of Kentucky, nor does either deserve any lasting fame for teaching young Abe his A B C's.

Neither Andrew Crawford, "a man named Sweeney," nor Azel W. Dorsey is eligible for fame's roll because he taught Lincoln in the Spencer county, Indiana, school he attended after moving away from Kentucky. This was the last schooling Abe ever got. Crawford was the only teacher, he told biographers, sought to impart principles of social usage along with "book l'arnin'." Pupils were required to meet each other at the door, inquire politely the name and then gravely to present the "caller" to the others in the school room, as a practice in manners.

All Lincoln's schooling totaled less than a year. He went to school "by littles," as he said. So no teacher could have had a very great influence upon him. In the Indiana backwoods as a young man he was accounted a great reader, but he probably read less than a dozen books. His neighbors were practically illiterate. His law partner, William Herndon, declared Lincoln read less and thought more than any man in public life in his generation. He had something to think with.

Lincoln and every one of those who have achieved greatness undoubtedly gained something from each of a number of persons, but their success, their demonstrations of character, their creative masterpieces, their shining records on history's pages they owed to those "good and perfect gifts" with which nature had endowed them.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A HIGHWAY TRAGEDY.

There is a touch of sadness and misfortune in the fact that "nearly 100 motorists passing along Medina rd. Sunday night ignored signals to stop and give aid to a dying man." It must be admitted that the motorists might plead a plausible defense to the charge of inhumanity in this business. Every automobile club admonishes them of the danger of coming to a stop upon the signal of strangers. They have been alarmed by tales of violence done to friendly motorists who gave a lift to "hitch-hikers," who turned out later to be bandits in disguise.

These things have produced the logical result of making nearly every driver more or less indifferent to what may happen to another in the highways. Unless an accident is witnessed, and the need of aid apparent, the caravan is inclined to go its way, intent first of all upon its own safety and comfort.

If the truck driver who tried in vain to stop the passing motorists had rolled his own motor vehicle across the Medina highway, he would soon have had plenty of aid in saving life, for every motorist concerned in the resulting traffic jam would have been keenly intent upon knowing what was going on.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Progress of Aviation.

Letter mails dispatched by the British air mail services last year totalled 27,000 pounds, compared with 17,000 pounds the previous year.

Hiring an air taxi at Croyden, a London man flew to Naples, a distance of 1,100 miles, to visit his sick sister, in just under twenty-four hours.

Italy, it is claimed, now holds the world's aviation records for height and speed, and it will shortly attempt to capture the records for distance and duration.

Establishment of a regular air service between Berlin and Peking by way of Moscow within the next two years is now reported as under consideration in German aeronautical circles.

The air mail service established between New York and Washington, May 15, 1918, was not only the first regular air mail route in the United States, but also the first to be started anywhere in the world.

The new German airship under construction by the Zeppelins—the L. Z.-127—is designed as a commercial airship with a range of about 6,000 miles. It will be able to carry twenty passengers and fifteen tons of baggage, mail and freight. The ship will carry a crew of twenty-six and will have a normal speed of eighty miles an hour.

Mosquito Against Mosquito.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The military principle of employing native troops against an enemy, which of late years has been so successfully used in many places to do battle against our insect foes, has had a somewhat novel development in France, where one species of mosquito has been called into action to drive out another, more objectionable, one. The introduced species has the most pleasing quality that could belong to a mosquito, that namely of dislike for human blood. It does not bite man, and has no disposition to his habitations. But, it is a vigorous feeder upon other animals, and appears to be as thorough a monopolist as the English sparrow, so that it drives away the man-biters by seizing upon most of their food supplies; and perhaps also by being for them a very uncomfortable neighbor, for, it is reported, that these mercenaries have freed the town of Pons from the troublesome Culex pipiens, by shouldering them out, and taking their place. The friendly species comes from the department of Cotes du Nord. As far as known their enlistment is only local at present, but they may be heard from more widely if their local reputation is confirmed by an extended employment of their services.

It has been observed that mosquitoes of particular varieties are apt to restrict their range, each choosing a locality favorable to it, and some becoming known by their special fondness for human blood, while others prefer to feed upon different animals. It is likely that the tastes of a species may be altered by their environment, so that when introduced to drive away by inoffensive competition the less desirable tribes they may finally turn upon their confiding friends and celebrate the acquisition of a better bill of fare.

No doubt the most effective method of warfare against mosquitoes is that of destroying, completely, their breeding places. Any kind of receptacle in which water can remain and stagnate—and stagnation comes very quickly—is a potential nursery for larvae. Little ground puddles, stopped-up gutters, lazily flowing brooks, swamps, ponds, rain-water barrels, drains, cisterns, wet places in grass-covered areas, and many concealed pockets of dead water which can be found not only around barns and yards but in and near houses whose inhabitants vainly imagine that they harbor no mosquito cradles—all these are to be looked out and eradicated, if the war against these dangerous pests is to be thoroughly won. The same determined vigilance is necessary in order to get rid of the house, or typhoid fly. The riddance from both of these nuisances can be, and has been, accomplished locally, but usually the efforts of those who effect so desirable a reform are defeated by the carelessness, ignorance and indifference of neighbors.

Means ought to be found for establishing a public organization in every community for the systematic destruction of flies, mosquitoes and other noxious insects. Details as to the means of conducting this unoutlawable warfare, can easily be obtained by writing to the bureau of entomology in Washington, which exists for no other purpose than to discover and spread abroad knowledge of that kind. Let those who enjoy the trumpeting of the mosquito and the buzz and tickle and decorative genius of the fly, have private menageries for the safekeeping of their pets.

Tirana—the Capital of Albania.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Nestling amid stately cypress trees at the foot of a wooded mountain, is a cluster of white-walled houses with red roofs. It is Tirana, the capital of Albania, the tiny Balkan nation of a million souls.

Early in the morning, before the sun is high, there is a slow stirring of movement signifying awakening life. This is in response to the muezzins' call from atop the minaret of the mosque.

Curtains are parted behind barred harem windows, disclosing moving forms of veiled women preparing their masters' meals. Walled gates are thrown open as tall men of dark mien dressed in colorful costumes strut forth to matin prayers.

Caravans of belled mules file into the market place, burdened with produce. In the street of the bazaars, the silversmith, the coppersmith, the blacksmith, the pounders of brass send forth fiery sparks from anvils and the clanging music of their heavy blows.

Under roofs that join to make cool arcades, throngs of oddly garbed townsfolk bargain loudly with the shopkeepers for purchase of colored cloth, trinkets from the West, stacks of uncured hides, new fez headgear, silver-mounted arms and pyramids of eggs.

Veiled women, moccasined men, laughing dark-eyed boys brush against frock-coated statesmen wending their way to the Government House.

At sundown the weird muezzins' call again sounds over the roof tops of the town. Shop windows are closed and barred, donkeys line the mountain trail, homeward bound.

The streets of Tirana are still. No night life mars the quiet. All is at peace until sunrise.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Features Service, Inc.

John Field—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

When we listen to the haunting melody of one of Chopin's nocturnes how few of us realize that he was but following the path blazed by John Field, who introduced this style of composition.

John Field, who was one of the most noted of English composers and pianists was born in Dublin on July 26, 1782. His early instruction in music was received from his grandfather, a well-known organist, and his father, who was a violinist. Although Field was an apt pupil, he was apprenticed to the famous Clementi, who was at the time at the height of his success. Clementi taught the boy, but Field had to work in the salesrooms of Clementi's shop demonstrating the pianos to customers.

In 1802 Clementi took Field to Paris, where he created a genuine sensation by his rendition of Bach's and Handel's fugues. In 1804 he accompanied Clementi to Russia, and while there the master and the pupil parted company, Field remaining in Russia as a teacher and gaining a reputation as a pianist. In 1822 he made a brilliant debut in London, playing one of his own concertos at the Philharmonic. After his success in England, he went to Paris, thence to Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. In Italy, however, his pianistic peculiarities were not appreciated and during his stay in Naples, Field was taken very ill. He lay in a hospital for several months, when he was found and removed therefrom by a Russian family, who took him back to Moscow.

While John Field won fame through his mastery of the piano, yet his compositions are of far more value and of greater importance to musical history. For it was Field who first introduced nocturnes. Previous to this time, a composition was either in the form of a sonata, a rondo, or something of that style, but it was Field who introduced the nocturnes and paved the way for the subsequent compositions which have appeared variously as songs without word, ballades, and impromtus. He, it was who formed the link between the latter period of Clementi's reign and opened the way for Chopin.

The illness in Naples had greatly undermined Field's health and he died in Moscow on January 11, 1837.

A world congress on grain growing and marketing is planned to be held at Regina, Saskatchewan, in 1932, the year which will be the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Canadian West.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 1—The business of being a chef in America has not attained the dignity it has in Europe, but makes headway. The newly imported chef is now snap-shotted at the dock with other celebrities and questioned by reporters.

Their salaries in New York range from $5,000 to $25,000 a year. The European chef usually comes to the calling by family inheritance—his father, grandfather and so on were chefs. Since the seventeenth century one family in Germany has given each generation an illustrious chef.

The skill of a superior chef depends largely upon his sense of taste. He never smokes, for fear of injury to his palate. Nearly all have an academic education, many being graduates of law and medical schools before taking up the culinary art.

The European chef arrives at his life's work by gradual stages. He must serve his apprenticeship in lowly scullery posts, a a bus boy, waiter, waiter captain and, most important of all, as head waiter. Here he learns much of the cuisine desires of people.

Some spend months acquiring the knack of mixing salad dressing and sauces. Perhaps the best known chefs are Oscar of the Waldorf and the late Cesare Rits, who founded the chain of hotels bearing his name. Rits died a millionaire and Oscar is extremely wealthy.

The chef leads a cloistered life. He makes few friends and it is one of the traditions he never be seen mingling in fashionable public places. This is not due to a feeling of inferiority, for the good chef considers himself a true artist. His seclusion adds attractive mystery to cooking.

Most chefs are artistically inclined. They spend off hours in the galleries and are adroit collectors. They have the manners of a Chesterfield. Many have met royalty and had intimate peeps behind the curtains of the great.

This story of a Long Island dinner bobs up frequently. A lady wore a ring with a large square diamond. A gentleman at her side asked if he might inspect it. It was handed him, and in turn handed to several others. It did not come back to its owner. There was a scene.

The host arose and said doubtless the whole thing was a joke carried too far. To save embarrassment he would turn off the lights and place a gold box in the center of the table and he felt certain the ring would be dropped into the box.

After a few seconds' wait in the dark there was the plink of a ring falling into the box. "If you are ready," said the host, "I will ask you to respond to the roll call with 'Yes'." This was done. The room was suddenly flooded with light. And the box was gone.

Coming-out parties for debutantes are losing favor. The impression has been driven home by critics and writers that a debut is another way of putting a marriageable maid on the auction block—a public manifesto she is in the matrimonial market, and may the richest man win. The effort of many to outdo others in giving coming-out parties has almost bankrupted several families. Some hotels where smart debuts take place demand payment in advance unless the extreme wealth of the parents makes it unnecessary. They have been stung too often to take further chances.

Few cities are so thoughtful of birds as this. In some residential sections there is a bird bath to every block. And in public squares at dusk are always those who never fail in wind, snow or rain to scatter crumbs.

Birds are all right, but a lot of folk shrink from going out of our way to encourage them. Their habit of collecting at 4 a. m. outside a bedroom window to pass hasty remarks to each other seems inconsiderate. The unthinking may smile happily and say this is a proper blow at the doctors who are all too ready to operate—both on body account and bank roll account. The more thoughtful realise there are no more earnest seekers after truth than reputable physicians. Qualified doctors do not rush into operations. The fact remains that surgery—in time—is the only cure for acute appendicitis.

The radio has given an astonishing boost to democracy and the whole idea of democracy. Never before have so many people taken an interest in political affairs. The radio brought the exercises of the two national conventions into millions of American homes. Thousands of folks who heard little of politics and public life and cared less, find their interest properly aroused when the proceedings of democracy are delivered into their homes.

Speaking of radio and the broadcasting of conventions, one can go further and see the immense contribution radio is making in this national political campaign in acquainting the people with the merits of candidates and policies. With the enormous resources of the radio added to the newspaper and the magazine it is now possible for Mr. and Mrs. Citizen to know who's who in American public life and what he stands for. We now have the best chance we ever had to do some real intelligent voting.

Well, here's some bad news. Dr. R. W. Scott, Western Reserve medical school, says that the large number of deaths at the age of 50 and 55 is not brought about so much by our fast living as by the hard fact that nature just naturally goes away and leaves us at the top of the hill. Every well born boy or girl has an expectancy of about 55 years at birth. After we reach that age nature seems to withdraw her special support and we have to drift for ourselves. It behooves us to get a good start before the age of 50, in the way of habits of food, drink, sleep, and exercise so that we can go it alone for the last thirty or forty years.

Houser and Carr Enforce America's Lead at Olympic Games

PADDOCK ELIMINATED IN 200-METER RACE

South African Takes First in 110-Meter Hurdle Event

NURMI WINS

American Disasters Pile Up as Sprinters Fail in Dashes and Hurdles

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 5—Bud Houser and Sabin Carr came to the rescue of America's fading supremacy in track and field today when they won the discus throw and pole vault respectively in the Olympic games in progress here. Houser's winning toss in the discus, 155 feet 2 2-5 inches, coming on his third effort in the preliminary trials when he was about to be eliminated, established a new Olympic record for the event. His victory left him in possession of the title he won at the 1924 games in Paris.

Hard upon the blow sustained by the elimination of Charley Paddock from the 200-metre finals, America's track and field prestige suffered again today when Atkinson of South Africa, won the final of the 110-metre hurdle race, with three Americans competing, in 14 4-5 seconds. Steve Anderson, University of Washington, was second and Johnny Collier, Brown University, was third.

Atkinson finished second to Dan Kinsey, University of Illinois, in the 1924 Olympics. His time today equalled the listed world's record but was a fifth of a second below the new record established in the semi-finals of yesterday.

No Excuse

The man who made that record, Weissmann-Smith, of South Africa, was fifth today, losing fourth place to Leighton Dye, Los Angeles. Gaby, the Englishman, was sixth and last.

None of the Americans had an excuse, as the race was perfectly run and perfectly won, the start being even and not a hurdle being tipped.

There was one false start when Gaby broke out of his holes but when the gun went off, the field went away admirably together. Obstacle after obstacle they cleared virtually as a team and, at the next to the last hurdle, they still were well-bunched. However, Atkinson took this jump more cleanly than the others, went out to the front by two feet and stayed there all kids in the remaining yards. Anderson came strongly over the final hurdle and made a great play to nip Atkinson before the wire but failed by a scant foot.

James Corson, Olympic club, San Francisco, established a new Olympic record of 154 feet 2 2-5 inches in the final of the discus throw. The old record was 151 feet 5 1-16 inches, set by Clarence Houser in the Paris games of 1924.

Finishes Second

Mel Dalton, Seton Hall, got into the finals of the 3,000-metre steeplechase by running an excellent race in his heat. He finished second to Willie Ritola, the 1924 champion, beating out the Swede, Eklof, in a drive for the finish. Walter Gegan, New York A. C., also made a game bid to catch the Swede but couldn't quite get up.

American disasters continued to pile up in the Olympic games when their sprinters failed to win the 200-metre dash and their hurdlers could do no better than second, third and fourth in the 110-metre hurdles, both of these having been among America's favorite events in other Olympiads. The hurdle race went to Atkinson, of South Africa, with Steve Anderson, Washington, finishing a bare foot behind him and Johnny Collier, Brown University, and Leighton Dye, Los Angeles, being third and fourth respectively.

Then, with Charley Borah being shut out yesterday and Charley Paddock and Hank Cumming following suit today in the semi finals, the United States had only one surviving nominee for the 200-meter final. He was Jackso Scholz, the 1924 champion, and Scholz was driven back into third position at the finish.

Percy Williams, the Canadian schoolboy from Vancouver, won the race for a double sprint victory in 21 4-5 seconds. Rangely, of England, staved off Scholz's last rush to finish second. The German, Kornig, finished in a dead heat with Scholz for third place. Fitzpatrick, of Canada, and Schuller, of Germany trailed in that order.

Fails at Record

Williams furnished the first Olympic double championship in the sprints since Ralph Craig, the American, turned that trick in the 1912 games at Stockholm. Previously, the only other dual winner had been Archie Hahn, another American, in the 1904 Olympics at St. Louis. Hahn didn't get the competition on that occasion that Craig and Williams were faced with in gaining their victories.

In spite of the high calibre of the sprint fields in these games, neither of Williams' winning times equalled the Olympic records. He was a fifth of a second behind the mark in each race, although unoffial clockers caught him in 10 2-5 in the 100-metre finals. This, if official, would have equalled the world record held by Charley Paddock.

The latter was a spectator for the first time during an Olympic sprint when the 200-meter final was run off this afternoon. Commenting on his failure in the semi-finals, he had this to say:

"After 20 yards, I knew I couldn't make it. Yesterday I had everything. Today, I felt fine but found I had nothing."

Before the race began, officials denied the American protest in the case of Hank Cumming, who was declared to have finished fourth in one of the semi-finals with third place going to Fitzpatrick. It was claimed by the Americans that Cumming should have been placed third in this heat.

Not in Question

The judges pondered 12 minutes in the placing of the men, although Williams' victory was not in question. He won by a clear foot and, after assuring himself that the officinis saw it that way, too, he raced joyfully into the middle of the infield, where he was met by his proud father, who embraced and kissed him with almost Gallic demonstrativeness.

Scholz drew the lane next to the outside and broke slowly, as is his wont. He was a yard behind the leading Williams as they rounded into the straightaway but came strong at the finish being less than a foot behind Rangeley who in turn was a foot behind Williams.

In spite of the official announcement, naming Scholz as third, the American and German flags were flown together in third position on the official pole, indicating a dead heat between Scholtz and Kornig. This subsequently was announced as the official decision.

The result of the race lent accentuation to the series of American failures that have followed the victories of Bob King in the high jump and John Kuck in the shot put on the opening day.

Houser Saves Cause

Bud Houser saved the American cause from an utter rout by repeating his performance of the 1924 games in winning the discus this afternoon with a toss of 155 feet 2 9-10 inches, establishing a new Olympic record. Jim Corson, San Francisco, who had made a new record of 154 feet 2 2-5 inches earlier in the competition, finally finished third, second place going to Kivi, the Finn.

The noblest Finn of them all, Paavo Nurmi, then came on to win his heat in the 3,000-metre steeplechase and incidentally, to furnish unwittingly the laugh of the day. W. O. Spencer, Chicago A. A., qualified for the final by running third in this heat with Duquesne, the Frenchman, second. Edwin Wide, the Swede, was a non-starter, owing to a strained leg.

Nurmi's unintended comedy came as he tried to clear the obstacle at the water jump on the first lap. The top rung caught his foot, however, and Paavo and the hurdle executed a neat dive into the tank for a complete bath. However, they stopped laughing at this grave Finn after he had recovered his feet and, dripping wet, raced easily into the lead again, never to be headed.

Lloyd Hahn, Yankee hope in the middle distances, again failed his supporters today when he dropped out of his heat in the 1,500-metre event today. It had been hoped that Hahn would win both races but his collapse in the 800-metre run yesterday, in which he tottered home in fifth position, evidently sapped his vitality for today's heat.

He didn't have even a suggestion of his old drive as he left the mark with the field and, running sluggishly, was hard pressed to remain fourth during the last lap. From that point, he dropped steadily to the rear and was a hopeless seventh when he retired from the track fifty yards from the finish.

The heat was won by Bogher, of Germany, with Whyte, of Australia, second in 3:59 3-5.

However, the stands and the track men themselves paid Hahn but slight heed. They still were buzzing over the remarkable running of the 19-year-old Williams.

The four American pole vaulters, Lee Barnes, 1924 Olympic champion and world's record holder; Sabin Carr, of Yale, former record holder; Bill Droegemueller, Northwestern university, and Charles E. McGinnis, Chicago A. A., qualified easily for the pole vault final, clearing 12 feet 1-16 inch.

Likewise did Miss Florence MacDonald declare herself in on the finals of the ladies 800-metre run. She finished a close second in the heat won by Miss Thompson, of Canada, with Fraulein Wewer, of Germany, third. However, Miss Rayma Wilson, of Pasadena, Cal., was shut out in another heat, finishing seventh in a field of nine. The heat was won by the German, Fraulein Radke, with the Japanese runner-sprinter, Hitomi, second. asNArFSasshrdlu shrdlu shrdlu sh sh

Veteran Railroad Engine Pilot Honored Along Line As He Makes Final Run

Kenton Is Scene of One of Receptions Staged for Tommy Donaldson, T. & O. C. Engineer, on His Farewell Trip: Retires on Pension at Age of 70

KENTON, Aug. 1—Tommy Donaldson, veteran railroader of Columbus, made his last run yesterday as passenger engineer on the Toledo & Ohio Central railroad of the New York Central lines.

The event was a memorable one in the life of the old-time pilot, for all along the line between Toledo and Columbus, great crowds of employes and friends gathered to tender him a farewell reception.

As his gayly decorated locomotive, pulling passenger train No. 4 from Toledo to the capital city, came to a halt at the Main st. station here, Donaldson dropped from his cab into the midst of a delegation of Ohio Central employes who had assembled to pay him tribute.

Gets Floral Gift

They presented him with flowers in recognition of his long and faithful service, and misty-eyed, and with a choking voice he thanked them. A cheer went up when Donaldson stepped to the cab window and waved a farewell as the engine slowly chugged out of the station.

But the greatest reception awaited Donaldson in Columbus at the end of his last run when high railroad officials and employes met the train. They presented him with gifts and in talks expressed their appreciation for his long service and loyalty to the carrier.

Retires on Pension

Donaldson, having attained the age of 70 years, is to retire on a pension in line with a long established custom of the New York Central. He has been in the service of the Ohio Central since June 17, 1895, when he was hired as an engineer. Prior to that time he was in the service of the Erie railroad as brakeman.

Accompanying the veteran railroader and riding with him in the engine cab was J. N. Jones, Columbus, road foreman of engines, who earlier in his career fired for Donaldson, P. W. Rickett, Columbus, was fireman.

various chicken thefts in the vicinity of the Leon March farm along Lovers' lane. Accompanied by a deputy, the sheriff went out this morning to investigate.

In the lane the officers discovered a car, occupied by two women, they said. The women said they Mrs. J. A. Schlegler and Miss Violet Smith, 24, both of South Newberry. They told the officers the car had broken down and that the driver had gone for help, it was reported.

Dash For Liberty

Ordering his deputy to stand by the car, Ferry continued up the road. He came on the three men and they refused to stop when he shouted to them, he said. The shooting then began, the sheriff reported. Clogston was wounded when he made a dash for liberty in the automobile. He lost control of the car which the noverturned in a ditch. The two women, who still were in the machine, were slightly injured. They were taken to the Portage county jail and are to be questioned today.

BUSINESS MEN WOOE KLEIN BE NAMED

Want To Keep Department of Commerce "Out of Politics"

Washington, Aug. 1—In an effort to keep the department of commerce "out of politics", business men of the United States have started a campaign for the appointment of Dr. Julius Klein, director of foreign and domestic commerce, as a successor to Herbert Hoover, it was learned today.

Taking the stand that the department is exclusively devoted to commercial and industrial activities, business men have laid their case before President Coolidge, representing that the selection of a secretary of commerce, based upon political considerations, would be unfortunate.

While it has been supposed generally that Hoover's successor would be from among the politically prominent Republicans there now appears to be grounds for the belief that the president has been impressed by those who hope to keep the commerce department a "business bureau."

Klein Advises Hoover

Klein has been one of Hoover's chief economic advisers during the last eight years, particularly in matters pertaining to the expansion of foreign trade, which has grown enormously since the war.

Hoover always has taken the attitude that foreign markets, properly promoted, would furnish an outlet for the surplus American production and might be the means of preventing a disastrous slump in industry during periods of slackness in the domestic demand.

Klein formerly was in charge of the Latin-American division of the commerce. He has been a commercial attache in South America and later occupied the Latin-American chair at Harvard. He was at this university when Hoover asked him to take the directorship of foreign and domestic commerce.

Fear was expressed by business men that in the event of the appointment of a secretary of commerce from the ranks of the politicians, there would be many resignations among department executives, who familiar with Hoover's policies, have been carrying out the campaign to promote foreign and domestic trade. Klein, among other executives, has received a number of flattering offers from private business corporations.

DRY LEAGUE WAGING OWN WAR ON SMITH

Will Raise Maximum Fund of $500,000; McBride Returns from Survey

Washington, Aug. 1—The Anti-Saloon League of America, while supporting Herbert Hoover for the presidency, will wage its campaign entirely aloof from the Republican party, General Supt. F. Scott McBride said on his return here today from a survey of five states.

The dry league is raising its own campaign fund—with a maximum of $500,000 authorized—and will support proved drys for congress regardless of party affiliations.

The campaign to defeat Gov. Alfred E. Smith is already under way, but will not reach full tide until early in September.

Coupled with this explanation of the league's plan of operations in the political war zone, Dr. McBride declared that if 90 per cent of the church vote is cast, Hoover will be elected.

Finds Dry Aroused

"On the other hand," he said "it is fully realized that if the drys in the churches are inactive and indifferent, the aggressive wet interests will be able to place Smith in the White House."

McBride declared that during his trip he found drys aroused in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New York and West Virginia.

He offered a prediction that a "very dry" congress will emerge from the November elections.

The prediction was made without regard to whether it would encourage Democratic drys to vote for Smith in the belief that a dry congress would "handcuff" him or whether it might convince Republican wets that it would be a futile thing to desert Hoover in the vain hope of bringing back beer.

Dry Majorities

At the present time, McBride said, the senate shows 74 per cent dry among the Republicans and 71 per cent dry among the Democrats, while the house as a whole is 75 per cent dry.

"The situation on behalf of a dry congress never looked so good in any former campaign as at the present time," said McBride. "In none of the primaries already held has there been any unfavorable reaction but in a number of places there have been gains."

EXAMINER WINDS UP MARION INSPECTION

Concludes Three Months' Work at City Offices; Files Report with State

George Dustman, state examiner, completed examination of the city books here today and submitted his report to the state inspection department at Columbus. A typewritten copy of the report will be made and returned to the city for filing. This copy will be received within the next three months.

While three months were spent by the examiner in going over the city books, the same length of time as last year, the cost was less to the city than last year, it was explained by the examiner, for the reason that the assistant examiner worked only two months, whereas he spent the entire three months here last year.

Modern Home Lagging in March of Progress, Dr. Ott Tells Chautauqua Audience

Is Far Behind Schools, Churches and Reformatories, He Declares in "Sour Grapes" Lecture, Final Number of Marion's 1928 Chautauqua Program

Using reality and fate as the basis of his theme, Dr. Edward Amherst Ott, nationally known orator, last night presented the lecture for which he has become famous, as the concluding number of the Marion County chautauqua for the 1928 season.

Despite inclement weather, the closing number of the lecture course program attracted one of the largest crowds of the entire week. Chautauqua pavilion, Garfield park was fairly well filled. While this year the Chautauqua was largely patronized by women, the crowd last night was more than half made up of persons of the opposite sex.

An instrumental prelude was given by Olivar's Filipino quintet, who had presented a concert as the afternoon's program.

The title of the lecture, "Sour Grapes," was appropriate in that, this, the first of Dr. Ott's "Art of Living" series, correlates a knowledge of the laws of breeding with practical social problems and deals primarily with the sour grapes of humanity that improper heredity has provoked.

"Like begets like," Dr. Ott said, "you can't achieve character overnight."

Live Unwisely

"We do not know how to live and we've ceased to be a normal healthy, living race," Dr. Ott said of the present generation. "Oh! what a world we could have, healthy and happy, if only a little care and forethought was exercised.

"The institution of the home is behind the times," Dr. Ott declared. "We have improved our schools, our churches, our reformatories to a point far in advance of the level of the home, and consequently the children sent to the schools and churches are not on a par with the institution whose teaching they are to absorb.

"The object of the school is not to make scholars," Dr. Ott said, "school is a store, the teachers are the dealers, and the pupils are customers. Each student can carry away only what his or her basket will hold and the primary duty of the school is to 'fill' each basket.

The speaker told how genius begets genius, pointing out the stock from which great leaders in many of the nation's fields have come.

Continuing he said, "As genius runs in families, so it is with crime and vice. Life is not an accident and if we allow criminals to reproduce we must expect morons and children with criminal tendencies. However, fundamentally the stock of the nation is sound, and the fact that we are beginning to waken in regard to the danger impending if criminals are permitted to multiply through nature, minimizes the danger."

Dr. Ott's plan for doing away with the menace that lies in the begetting of children by criminals is to resort to sterilization and colonization.

Lack of legislation with regard to marriages, Dr. Ott also deplored.

"We need marriage laws and divorce laws," he declared. Dr. Ott advocates a 90-day announcement preceding all weddings, so that parents and friends would have an opportunity to advise the young people about to venture into matrimony.

In closing Dr. Ott gave the quotation, "It matters not how straight the gate, how charged with punishment the scroll, I am the master of my fate and the captain of my soul."

Is New Yorker

Dr. Ott who makes his home in Ithaca, N. Y., is associated with Educational Extension Service, Inc., of which he is the founder. He is the originator of the character grading system used in public and private schools and the author of a number of books, most recent of which is his text, "Personality Development and Choice of Vocation."

The program by Oliver's Filipino quintet was given at 7:30 o'clock instead of 8 o'clock, as scheduled, on account of a change in the Chautauqua schedule. Their presentation last night included American music played on American instruments as well as the music of the Phillipines played on Phillipine instruments. The numbers were: "Sweet Hawiian Moonlight," "Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna," "Beloved," selection from "Il Trovatore," "Spanish Dance" by Raphael, "Doll Dance," "Filipino Love Song" by Saniago, "Russian Nightingale" by Alabieff, "The Rosary" by Nevin, a special arrangement of "The Mocking Bird," "Manila Rose" by Olivar, "Kalima Waltz," "Without You Sweetheart" and in closing, "Aloha Oe" by Libuakalini.

In the afternoon the quintet opened their program with a group consisting of "La Union March" by Estrella, "Zampa Overture" by Herold, and "Turkish Towel" by Russell. They also played "Spanish Bolero" by Pessard, "La Barcarole" by Offenbach, "Legaya" by Arsenio, "La Paloma" by Yradier, "Awakening of the Lion," "Pizzicato" by Delives an arrangement of "Palomita" by Alvarez, "The Wren" by Benedict, "Le Carnival d' Venice" by Ernest, "Just For You," "Let Us Be Merry" by Olivar, "Sunset Land" by Kawelo, "Moro Diana" in an arrangement by Olivar, and several selected numbers.

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER TWENTY

THREE little girls were rushing [illegible] Main Street again; fleeing [illegible] rays of light thrust far out [illegible] evening gloom.

[illegible] scrambling, the black, the [illegible] red, three pairs of eyes [illegible] this way and that, coming to [illegible] standing away. Three pairs of [illegible]—too scarlet for young [illegible] looking at anything or nothing. [illegible] forming. Some saying. [illegible] Brent k'l. They're tell- [illegible] her sister—"

[illegible] asking, "Who's the little devil [illegible] with the bright [illegible] one who said nothing but stared. Not a bad man, but one women usually [illegible] a dark face; depths in the eyes [illegible] an undertow. A half [illegible] as an upraised hand. [illegible] smoking.

[illegible] figure in gray flan- [illegible] skin. A person someway [illegible] huge, sixteen wolf-dog pac- [illegible] beside it.

[illegible] wriggled and pinched Kitten's arm. "Know who it is? Nicky Wickert. Gosh! Say, look't the hound. Say—"

Kitten snapped, "Be yourself, can't you? What do I care who he is? Hope he remembers us next time."

But she knew he hadn't seen the others. And when she tried to stare back at him her lashes dropped and her face stained brightly.

Just passing there on the street his personality was like a flame searing through her; she quickened her step—hurried the other two on—but even when they stopped before the ice cream shop she could feel the tingle.

Now she glanced backward; he was standing where she had seen him first, the dog at his side, looking after her.

"Well, they say he's a great ole sheik. All the swells crazy over him. What you sore about, Kitten? Sure gave you a tumble, he did."

"Will you shut up? Talk like a rubber dumbbell. I'm not going in here with you."

"Ah, we didn't mean anything Kitten. C'mon now—"

"No. Listen, Dottie; sneak home the back way so Em won't see you. If she snoops over stay out of sight. I'm with you see? How about it?"

"Oh, Kit, tell us! Is it a date? Listen—"

"Maybe I will sometime. You'll do that, Dottie? Em's that grouchy."

Dottie said she would, her eyes very round. She turned into the ice cream shop reluctantly, and Kitten went on down Main street alone.

She turned at the River road and began to walk slowly. At Brookside the big car of another adventure drew up and Ted Lanier helped her in.

"Thought you'd come, Red-head. How's my new girl?"

"You needn't be so sure of yourself and I'm not your girl."

"All right, Spit-fire. Will be, though. Where'll we go?"

"You're driving."

"Careless as that, eh? Right-o, and don't forget you asked for it."

She stretched herself out on the deeply cushioned seat and took off her hat. The car moved rapidly and smoothly and the feel of luxury wrapped her like velvet.

Living, this was; not the stupid, cat-on-the-hearth nonsense Emily always was dinging at her.

What did it get Emily? Working her head off, getting all her kick out of skimping to buy a shop. As if a girl wanted to slave all her life! Em never did know how to play; when she found it out some day she'd be wrinkled and gray and noboy'd give her a tumble. Some people were so darn goody-good it hurt to look at them.

"What you thinking about, Firefly?"

"Not you."

"Sweet tempered little thing, aren't you? Need taming."

"Suppose you're the one can do it, too."

"Maybe," the boy drawled with a laugh. He turned the car up South Mountain and headed for the country, the way they had taken the other day.

He was a good looking chap, Kitten decided, and not stuckupsie even for the Norrises. A slender young fellow, not more than 21, with a pleasant, freak face and eyes that looked straight at her when he spoke.

His hands weren't like a rich boy's, either they were hardened and stained. But that, she thought, might come from working around the car, since he probably drove a lot. She asked him if he were visiting in Lyall.

"Beginning to take an interest, I see."

"Don't flatter yourself."

"Yeh? Say, I like 'em snappy. No. I'm living here and now I'm glad I am. You know why, too, Pepperbox. With the wind blowing your hair that way you look like a three-alarm fire."

"Old stuff."

"Well, you're no Miss Methusalah," he remarked and grinned at her look of fury.

When they came to Deep Valley Inn he turned up the drive. A half dozen cars were parked in the grounds and he moved in beside them, shutting off his engine without a word. Kitten protested.

"I didn't say I'd come here."

"You said I was driving. Of course if you don't want to stop—"

But she did. She had heard about this place curiosity burned through her. She walked beside him up one of the verandas and into a long, low hall hung with antlers and hunting pictures. No one was there and she found this disappointing; she was still more disappointed when they were conducted to a little square of room opening directly on the grounds.

"Didn't need to be tucked away in here," she complained.

"But you don't come here to be seen, exactly." He looked at her curiously. "Honestly, haven't you ever made this dead-fall before?"

She wouldn't let him think she never had been anywhere. Just a stay-at-home kid. No way to get along, that wasn't. Floss had told her better.

So she smiled in Flossie's best manner and he said, "Oh, I see. That's all right, then." And when the waiter put before them something pinkish that smelled like lemonade she remarked, more graciously, that she liked the color.

"Yeh? It's that sloe but sure shade. Two of those and—"

But she didn't drink two. She laughed a great deal after the first and made many witty and interesting remarks and couldn' imagine why everything seemed so comical. Even Ted who hadn't been especially funny at first, suddenly was very much so indeed.

It was about half way through the second that something heavy seemed to fall from nowhere and strike the top of her head. After that there was a dim impression of one asking "All right, now?" And of strong arms gathering her up.

After a longer while a rush of wind against her face made her wonder dizzily if they were driving again.

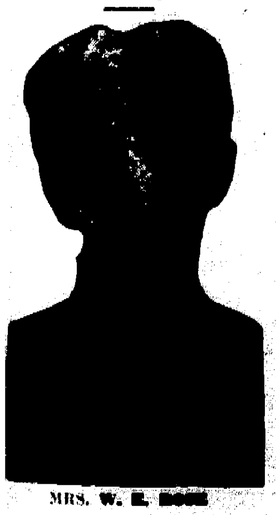
SICK STOMACH WEAKENED HER ENTIRE SYSTEM

Konjola Was First Medicine To Give Her Real Relief; She Says



MRS. W. E. ROSE

"My stomach was in a sick unhealthy condition and my food never digested right, so that my whole system was run down and I was almost as weak as a child," said Mrs. W E Rose, of Canfield, Ohio, (near Youngstown).

A terrible bearing-down feeling would come in my lower stomach after each meal. Then terrific cramps and pains of all kinds would follow. The gas formed in my stomach would smother my heart and many times I thought any minute would be my last. Sleeplessness would keep me awake at night and I would get up in the morning feeling worse than the night before.

"I decided to try Konjola and it was the first medicine to give me real relief from the miseries I had been suffering. Now I am always feeling good. My system is in better condition than it has been for years and all sign of nervousness is gone. I strongly recommend Konjola to everyone."

Konjola is different than any other medicine or remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from medicinal plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings quick relief in cases of suffering that have been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown people have been restored to a new measure of health through this compound. Hundreds upon hundreds of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until Konjola is the most highly talked of medicine that is known in this city.

Konjola is strongly recommended by Marion at Stamp & Stine's drug store, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns around this section.—Advertisement

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

MY feet were about as tough as ever this morning when me and Jubilee woke up and I got up and let him down out of the window, and put on my short britches and went down and milked the dummed brutes. There is mighty few kids as young as me would let their mother stick a needle into their stonebruise without hollering. What if I did think the girls were there? The maineat thing is that she did stick the needle in my stonebruise and I didn't holler. My mother told me always whenever I stuck a needle into anything to put it in some medicine first or hold a match to it and get it red hot. I thought she mean the stonebruise and she laughed at me.

Annabelle Lee almost got herself in trouble this morning when my mother was getting breakfast. She climbs up in chairs by hanging onto the seat and putting one foot in the chair which is all she can straddle, then she leans over and reaches till she gets hold of the back of the chair and pulls herself up. Then she turns around and sets down. There was a chair standing with its back to the table and she pulled herself up in it and then she stood up and got hold of the top of the back and straddled up onto the table with one foot and pulled herself up till she had both feet on the table, and then she stood up and turned around and sat down, and the butter was where she sat down, and it was a warm morning so that she spoilt all the butter there was there, and my mother and my aunt seen her at the same time, and they both screamed so loud that it scairt Annabelle Lee and made her cry. Then when they saw that she was setting in the butter they almost had a fit from laughing. They thought it was cute. I know what I would get if I was to climb up onto the breakfast table and set down in the butter. I had to hustle up to the store and get some more butter before we could eat.

My mother was complaining because she had so much work to do and not anyone to help her, so my father told me to come back from the pasture and take care of Annabelle Lee. My mother was aiming at my aunt and hit and almost ruined me. This is about as near as a woman hits what she aims at.

My grandfather was telling about a man that suicided by pulling the trigger with his toe, and Younkin didn't believe it, so I showed her. I put a stone about as big as a hen egg in my slingshot and held it down with my toe and stretched the rubber as tight as I could, to show her he done it, and then my toe slipped and when I come to my senses Younkin was wetting me here with water, my mother was rubbing the backs of my hands and my aunt was at the phone trying to get the doctor, and I had a lump on my forehead almost as big as a cue. When she seen I was all right my mother let me go and play ball.

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Confides Her Fears

"ON Mary's account?" Lillian echoed hastily told her of Marion's talk with me which had made me realize the deplorable condition of Mary's wardrobe. I kept back, however, Marion's generous impulsive offer, to share her own new things with Mary, for it had been given me as a confidence.

"Dicky has gone out to cash a check," I said, "so that he can give Mary enough money for an enjoyable shopping trip of her own. But I don't see how he can get back in ten minutes. There's no bank that he knows so near the station."

"He doesn't need a bank with Harry in tow," Mr. Underwood's wife said. "That's the reason Dicky took him along. Harry has the most bizarre acquaintances in every nook and corner of the city, some of them law-abiding, others the opposite. But every one of them, from a speak-easy proprietor to a garage owner is always able to flash a roll of bills, and Harry's credit is gilt-edged with every one of them. I'm a lot easier in my mind for your information. They'll be back pronto, and of course if it's for Mary, I don't mind waiting. The child is shabby, now I think of it. What do you suppose she's been spending her money for?"

She stopped short and looked at me with eyes suddenly gleaming.

"Now, I have it!" she exclaimed. "I'll wager you the cherry on the fruit cup that it's Mary check book she's worrying over instead of her notebook. She's afraid somebody will look at it and see where she's been spending her money."

I struggled for an instant with my resentment, then remembered what a tower of strength Lillian had been in the rescue of Mary from Jack Leslie. It was only her due to share the little knowledge I had.

"I'll not take your wager," I said, "for I happen to know the fat case Dicky's gift, which she dropped, contained her bank book and check book. I know because I picked them up and put them in my own bag where they now are. I needn't tell you that I feel like a ——"

"A combination of pegamus and pickpocket," she finished with a grin as I hesitated. "Knowing your Plymouth Rock brand of conscience, I am able to supply the simile without any trouble. But if my opinion is worth anything to you——"

"It's" I interrupted with emphasis.

"Thanks," she returned, "that makes it easier to tell you that I think you've done the only possible thing. Ordinarily, of course, it would be unthinkable for you to look at them, but you're in loco parentis, you know, which sometimes is dog Latin for 'loced parent.' Yes, I know," as I put up my hands in touching protest—"that's an ancient as well as an awful wheeze, but it happens to fit in this case. Granted that Mary is one of the dearest sweetest girls in the world granted that she has retrieved that abysmal folly of hers in wonderful fashion, yet she has proved herself utterly irresponsible once and, therefore, you must watch out for any slightest deviation from the normal on her part."

"Then you think," I faltered, "that I would be justified in looking over those books before I give them back to her?"

"Or put them where she can find them, without suspecting that you have had them," Lillian amended. "You'll be able to decide that later. But as to being 'justified' my dear mediaeval dancer on the point of a cambric needle—I'm getting my similes mixed, but never mind—I shall take you to the nearest mental clinic for examination if you don't grasp this Heaven sent opportunity to find out what the child is up to. But what do you know about this? Here are our men, back before the time they set. I'm ready to die now, I've seen a m'racle."

WILL GLADLY ANSWER LETTERS FROM WOMEN

Asking for Information About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. GLADYS ROGERS
Route 6, Grand Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl about 14 years old, when I was just entering womanhood. Then after I married, I took more of it. During the time before my baby was born this medicine gave me splendid results. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation also and recommend these medicines to my friends and will answer letters asking about them."—Mrs. Gladys Rogers, Route 6, Grand Avenue Atlanta, Georgia.

A Lot Better By Taking It.

Trafford, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I could not eat a thing. I had no appetite whatever and never felt good. I was talking to my friend one day and she passed the remark of how thin I was getting since I got married and I told her my trouble and she advised me to take the Vegetable Compound. I feel a lot better now since I have been taking it regularly and I can eat most anything. I recommend your medicine to anyone who tells me of troubles like my own, for I know what it has done for me. I have also used your Sanative Wash. I am willing to answer yours if they ask about the medicine."—Mrs. E. Gelatic, Box 206, Trafford, Pa.
